Even a President's son feels a little self-conscious when it comes to being fitted for his "wedding suit." Taking time out from cramming for his final exams at Harvard, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who will be married June 30 to Miss Ethel duPont, heiress to the duPont millions, made a hurried trip to his New York tailors, Roy-Webb Ltd. There, as everywhere, he encountered photographers. (Story on Page 3.)

HARVARD MEN HEROES IN RESCUE

Two Harvard students, one a former football captain, today plunged into Charles River and rescued a 38-year-old Cambridge fireman from drowning. The victim said he was William White of Antrim street, Cambridge.

Noticing a hat and tie on the Western avenue bridge railing, the youths, Jay C. Giles, 23, of West Newton, and Emile Dubiel, 21, former end and captain of the 1936 Crimson eleven, stopped their machine and ran back to investigate.

They peered over the railing and noticed a man struggling half submerged about 100 yards from shore.

"Hey there," Dubiel yelled, "is anything wrong?"

SINKS FROM SIGHT

The man gave a gasping answer and sank from sight. Giles ripped off his coat and shirt and plunged off the bridge as Dubiel ran to the nearest police box.

Reaching the struggling man as he was going down again, Giles seized him and started for the shore. A taxi driver, Dick Wise of Boston avenue, Somerville, who was driving by arrived at the scene and came to aid of Giles.

The two pulled the victim to shore and worked over him for 15 minutes in an attempt to revive him.

TREATED AT HOSPITAL

As White revived, the Metropolitan police, led by Dubiel, arrived at the scene and took up the respiratory work as Giles collapsed exhausted.

White was treated for immersion and held for observation at City Hospital.

White has been a member of the Cambridge fire department five years, and a month ago was suspended. At the department they said his suspension was to be lifted shortly.

He is married and the father of four children, Dorothy, 16, Marie, 15, Evelyn, 12, and William, Jr., 10.

Last fall, while going to the Harvard-Navy football game at the Stadium, Giles dived into the Charles and rescued two Cambridge boys at the same spot.

G-MEN, POLICE CLASH OVER KIDNAPING

Stony Brook, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—Investigators plied a plump, black-haired Russian woman with patient questions today on her story of life at "Long Meadows" farm from which Mrs. Alice McConnell Parsons vanished without a trace save a crude note demanding $25,000 ransom.

State police, pursuing their own investigation while federal agents moved secretly, concentrated on questioning the mysterious Mrs. Anna Kuprianova, housekeeper in the Parsons household.

It was Mrs. Kuprianova who told of seeing the 38-year-old heiress get into an automobile with a middle-aged man and woman Wednesday morning and drive away on a trip from which she has not returned.

Across from Mrs. Kuprianova in the Bay Shore police station sat Alex Kuprianoff, 43-year-old match factory worker, who came from Long Island City yesterday to claim he was her former husband.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph S. Arata of Suffolk County emerged from the conference early

Jean's Loyalty, Courage, Told by Ann Marsters

Ann Marsters, who obtained and wrote the last interview with Jean Harlow, tells today how the star won personal friends and public by her steadfastness to the memory of Paul Bern after his suicide. In this fifth installment of "The Tragic Life Story of Jean Harlow," Miss Marsters relates the public acclaim that secured her future, on her first film after Bern's death.

CHAPTER V

Jean Harlow gained the respect and admiration of the entire movie colony because of the splendid way she conducted herself after Paul Bern's suicide.

She showed superb courage and an unshakable loyalty to the man whose suicide might have ruined her life and her career.

The whole world was waiting for Jean's explanation of that strange note he left to his bride of two months, for Bern himself was greatly loved and honored in Hollywood.

What was the "frightful wrong" he had done her, and what was the scene that was "only a comedy?"

If Jean Harlow had revealed that secret, she could have spared herself a storm of rumors and criticism from a bewildered public.

But Jean chose silence, and in her

Timilty Ired by Hint Bookies Enjoyed 'Pull'

Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty today took new and drastic steps to keep Suffolk Downs free of "chiseling" bet-takers who have been cheating state and track of an average daily "handle" estimated at more than $50,000.

Irked by reports that bookmakers operating illegally at Suffolk have claimed protection of a notorious North End gangster and have defied track detectives to oust them, Commissioner Timilty assigned Captain James T. Sheehan and his "racket" squad to Suffolk Downs until further notice.

At the same time, Timilty demanded full investigation of the system by which officers of the police department are selected for paid details at the race track.

Providence, R. I., June 12—One man was arrested for hurling stones at a truck and a threatened drought and disease epidemic was averted here today because city officials defied 1200 public works department employes who went on strike.

The arrest came as 22 Sweeten trucks driven and manned by employes of contractors, wheeled out of the city yard at the new incinerator plant on Terminal avenue, under guard of police on eight motorcycles and in 22 private cars.

About 50 pickets began to hoot and jeer at the drivers. One man, not immediately identified, began hurling stones. He was quickly subdued by police and arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Police were ordered to accompany the trucks throughout the city today during the collection of garbage.

POLICE GRILL EX-HUSBAND OF "COUNTESS"

Scene, Figures in Society Kidnap Enigma

POLICE GUARD COUNTESS' YOUNG SON

International News Sound Photo

Shown with a New York State trooper is Alexander Kuprianoff, Russian mystery man in Parsons kidnaping case. He is an ex-husband of Anna Kuprianova, Parsons' housekeeper. He has been questioned for hours as to his knowledge of the Parsons comings and goings.

International News Photograph Service

Closely guarded by police is Roy Kupryonoff, 11-year-old son of Mrs. Anna Kupryanova, who lived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parsons. He is shown above being driven to school in an automobile operated by a state policeman. His Russian mother is also under close police guard since Mrs. Parsons disappeared.

this morning to say that Mrs. Kuprianova admitted the relationship, though she had not mentioned Kuprianoff in her earlier story of two former marriages.

(In Russian naming the suffix "ova" indicates "wife of," thus accounting for the difference in final syllables of the names of the couple.)

DENIES FATHERHOOD

Arata said the woman also identified Kuprianoff as the father of her 11-year-old son, Roy, who lived with her on the Parsons' landscaped poultry farm. The match worker, Arata said, dismissed that statement as "impossible." She previously had said Roy was the child of her first husband, who died in an automobile accident.

The questioning was broken off with the announcement that it would be resumed early today. Mrs. Kuprianova was taken back to the Parsons' home while Kuprianoff remained at the barracks overnight.

While reports spread that the heiress would be released soon in New York city, that a contact had been made with the kidnapers, and that the ransom had been paid, no signs of activity were apparent at the Stony Brook home.

The missing woman's husband, William H. Parsons, haggard and worn, went through the motions of caring for his squab farm, refusing all comment after he had twice appealed for freedom from police supervision in attempts to contact his wife's supposed abductors.

HOUSE PARTLY DARK

He refused to discuss reports that a second note had been received, supplementing the one found under the cushions of his car, 18 hours after Mrs. Parsons disappeared. That message bluntly demanded $25,000 "or you will never speak to Alice again."

In contrast to Thursday night, when the Parsons home was ablaze with light, only the lower floor was illuminated last night and even there the shades were lowered. The driveway and grounds were empty of cars and officers.

Federal agents, on the surface at least, were remaining aloof, pending the result of family efforts to contact the kidnapers. After Parsons' appeals for freedom and the assurance of his brother-in-law, Richardson Pratt, executive of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, that the ransom would be available, the government men, working under Rhea Whitley, did nothing except quietly explore the countryside. They were concentrating on the coves and inlets along the sound, which would afford excellent hiding places for motor boats.

POLICE IN ROW

The federal agents went their own way after Suffolk County authorities had heatedly announced severance of their investigation from that of the Department of Justice. The reason, said Assistant District Attorney Harry Brenner, was that the local officials had received no co-operation from the F. B. I. investigators and had even been banned from the boarding house where Whitley had established headquarters.

Thus the activity in the case which, through a series of fizzling clues had spread along the 118-mile sprawling length of Long Island and across Long Island sound into Connecticut, apparently had simmered into a little room in the big county police station where Mrs. Kuprianova parried her questioners.

No charges had been lodged against the woman or her former husband. Nor did Arata divulge any hint as to what elements the police questions were following. He contented himself with the comment that Mrs. Kuprianava was "cold, calm, and intelligent."

CHANGED NAME

Another twist to the enigmatic position of the Russian woman in the Parsons household came through the disclosure that she had changed her name to Parsons when she took out naturalization papers in 1926. Her son became 'Roy Parsons' at the same time.

The woman claims to be a countess. Kuprianoff said she was the daughter of an attendant at the Czar's court and an officer in the White Russian army. He said he had married her in Europe and divorced her in 1928. At the time Roy was born, he asserted, he had not seen her for three years.

Police "Protect" Russian Pair in Kidnap Case

New York, June 12 (INS)—A "protective" police detail today guarded "Countess" Anna Kuprianova and her stoold ex-husband while G-men and state police pushed their search for the vanished Mrs. Alice Parsons.

Fears increased that Mrs. Parsons had been murdered, since the deadline for payment of a $25,000 ransom has long since passed.

Despite the police guard, authorities emphasized that neither the "Countess," housekeeper for Mrs. Parsons, nor Alexander Kuprianoff, her former spouse, were under suspicion or even detained.

A shambling, soft-spoken little man, Kuprianoff was brought to the barracks from his Brooklyn home, and as soon as the "Countess" saw him she began shrieking volubly in Russian.

"She says she wants me to say I was in London living with her in 1925 and 1926," said Kuprianoff, a former captain in the Czar's army. "But if I said that it would be a lie."

Court Holds Youth After Auto Crash

Lawrence Harvey, 22, of Polk street, Charlestown, pleaded not guilty today in Somerville district court intt charges of larceny of an automobile, drunken driving and reckless driving. He was held in $5000 bail for a hearing Tuesday.

He was arrested after the car police said he was operating hit a pole in Mystic avenue, Somerville, knocking over the pole and leaving high tension electric wires dangling above the heads of a score of pedestrians.

Six Nazi Fliers Killed in Storm

Berlin, June 12 (AP)—Six members of the German air force were killed when their military plane, caught in a squall, crashed near Detmold, it was disclosed today.

The deaths raised to 16 the toll of fatalities from yesterday's sudden storms. Ten girl members of a Hitler youth group were drowned when flood waters trapped them in the Moderbach Valley, near Edersheim.

NEXT CONGRESS TO STUDY TAXES

Washington, June 12 (INS)—A new budget-balancing tax bill, in addition to legislation designed to strike a blow at tax-dodging, will be drafted early in the session of Congress beginning next January, congressional tax leaders said today.

The program is expected to include revision of the corporate surplus tax measure enacted last year, together with a general revision of the tax structure, possible broadening of the income tax base, and elimination of many "nuisance" taxes.

With the Treasury forecasting a deficit of $800,000,000 to $900,000,000 next year, it is probable that half the necessary sum will be sought by taxation and half by economy.

Meantime, the joint congressional committee to investigate tax-dodging plans to convene next week to draft stop-gap loophole legislation and prepare to make public names of wealthy taxpayers cited by President Roosevelt as avoiding taxation.

Ex-Boy Friend Held on Girl's Charge

Lowell, June 12—After an early morning struggle in her home with a prowler, Miss Ernestine Hasty of Elliott street today told police her adversary was a formere "boy friend."

The dazed girl was found a short distance from her rooming house, apparently in pursuit of her alleged attacker, by Officers Clayton Lackwood and Cornelius H. Sullivan.

Police later arrested William H. McGuire, 27, a stone driller, of Kinsman street, with whom she had been keeping company until they quarreled several months ago.

Charged with attack, McGuire was arraigned later in district court where he pleaded not guilty and was held in $1000 until June 19.

Here is the latest picture of Mrs. Parsons, for whom police of eight states are seeking. Her husband, scion of Standard Oil chieftains, is in possession of a ransom note demanding $25,000 for her return.

Steel Strike Grows As Peace Plan Fails In Ohio Conference

Monroe, Mich., June 12 (AP)—Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs announced today, as he left for Detroit to press his demand for national guard troops, that he was prepared to declare a "strike of emergency" tomorrow and barricade all entrances to the city if Governor Frank Murphy declined to send the militia.

The mayor said declaration of an "emergency" would "call to arms all able-bodied citizens" to prevent entrance of union men called to a mass meeting here. Admittance to the city would be by permit only.

By the Associated Press

Columbus, O., June 12—The aggressive steel workers organizing committee struck at a Bethlehem Steel Corp. plant today, even as representatives of opposing sides in a strike against three other major steel makers were unable to agree on a seven-point settlement plan proposed by Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio.

The list of 13,000 strike-idle workers at mills of Republic Steel Corp., Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. and Inland Steel Corp. was increased by a union-estimated 10,000 at Bethlehem's sprawling Cambria plant at Johnstown, Pa.

Pickets, numbering 200 to 300 around each gate of the Pennsylvania plant, where 12,000 to 15,000 mill hands are employed, cheered as the night shift stopped work promptly at midnight (E. D. T.).

There was no immediate indication of a spread of the walkout to other plants of Bethlehem, the nation's second-largest steel producer, which employs 80,000 workers.

The prolonged peace conference here in Ohio's executive mansion between representatives of Republic Steel and Tube and John L. Lewis' steel union broke sup nearly 11 hours after it had convened. It was recessed until next Tuesday.

Governor Davey said of the conferees "It was very interesting to see them smiling as they shook hands and said 'Good night.' Asked if he felt progress had been made toward settling the seven-state strike the governor said "We hope so."

After Davey urged the companies to sign a SWOC contract recognizing the union as collective bargaining agent for its own members only—the point at issue throughout the two and one-half week-old strike — company representatives said they had not changed their intention against signing.

The officials, J. C. Argetsinger of Sheet & Tube and J. A. Voss of Republic, expressed hope Governor Davey would find a way to settle the conflict without necessity of signing a contract.

Union representatives — Philip Murray, national SWOC chairman, and John Owens, Ohio CIO director — insisted, meanwhile, on a contract.

MURPHY AT MEETING

The proposal that the SWOC be recognized in a contract for its members only was virtually identical to the agreement signed with the SWOC several months ago by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co., subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Corp. which is the nation's largest producer.

Michigan's governor, Frank Murphy, announced he would meet in Detroit today with CIO leaders and city officials of Monroe, Mich., to pave the way for a "peaceful" mass meeting at Monroe tomorrow.

The demonstration was called by Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, who asked CIO unions in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio to assemble in troubled Monroe for a "gigantic mass meeting" to protest jailing of a picket line of striking CIO steel workers at Republic Steel subsidiary Thursday night.

TUGS FAIL TO FREE WARSHIP

San Francisco, June 12 (AP)—A dozen tugboats swarmed about the 32,300-ton battleship Tennessee today, straining vainly to free her from a shoal in San Francisco bay.

It was the second failure within 24 hours to dislodge the warship during high tide.

The great vessel ground her nose into the mudflats off Alameda yesterday morning while she was turning to drop anchor in man o'war row after her arrival from the Bremerton, Wash., navy yard.

At high tide the steel is covered with 30 feet of water, but the Tennessee draws 32 feet.

Naval sources said fuel from the Tennessee's tanks might be lightened to reduce her weight. There also was the possibility that some of her 1400 officers and men might be sent ashore to further reduce the weight.

Children Discover 12 Bodies in Boxes

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12 (INS) —Authorities investigated a gruesome mystery today following discovery by two children of 12 human bodies in rough pine boxes in an empty building formerly occupied by the "Naturopathic Hospital of Philadelphia."

Authorities stated the "Naturopathic Hospital" before it was closed by authorities in connection with a charity fraud, did not possess legal right to perform anatomical dissections.

protest against so-called "spite" layoffs of 200 men during the past week, threatened for a time to tie up garbage collection, sewer maintenance, water service and street repairs.

Fifteen minutes after the strike began at 5 a. m., Public Works Commissioner Charles A. Maguire declared "the trucks are going out" to collect garbage. He then went about hiring trucks from local contractors who furnished the men.

"This strike is a menace directed at the "health of the city," declared Maguire. "There's work for those who want to work. We'll replace with other men."

In defense of the layoff of the 250 men in the highway and restoration divisions of the city department, Commissioner Maguire said there was "insufficient funds to carry the present force and come within the budget for the present fiscal year."

The strikers' commission, through its chairman, William Kane, announced that skeleton crews would be provided to care for the water works and sewerage system to prevent a drought and prevent dumping in the bay.

GUARD HEALTH

"The strikers are more interested in public health than the politicians. They'll see that the public health is not menaced," Kane declared.

Kane asserted that the strike will not be called off until all of the 250 discharged men are put back on the payroll.

The full effect of the strike is not expected to be felt until Monday. Because of the five-day week most of the city departments do not operate today. The departments which will be affected by the strike, if it continues, Monday, are the highways, sewers, water maintenance, forestry, street cleaning, bridges, incinerator and garbage collection.

"The men will remain in the incinerator plant until the strike i ended," Commissioner Maguire said.

A supply of food is already stored there and more has been ordered, it was stated.

Rita Johnson Battled Way Up To Harlow Role

Rita Johnson, 24-year-old Worcester girl, has been chosen to succeed glamorous Jean Harlow in the feminine lead opposite Clark Gable in "Saratoga." The story of the blonde Bay State girl who attained fame after years of hard work on stage and radio is concluded today.

By JAMES J. DELANEY

We left Rita in high school, didn't we? And her folks were just about to explain about the boys.

Well, the truth of the matter is that Rita's best "boy friend" was her brother Bill. He's a star football player at St. Anselm's College in Manchester, N. H., now. Class of '40.

There was another young man in those happy high school days who used to squire Rita to dances. He became a priest. And nobody's prouder of that than the little Worcester girl who was his pal, half a dozen years ago.

Rita was undeniably attractive, with the blonde tresses and blue eyes that her mother hoped she'd have, but she wasn't "stuck on herself" the way some girls are, her father, "Bill" Sr., explained.

"When there was a school dance," he said, "Rita went with either Bill or this other boy, and maybe a half a dozen other couples. She didn't like to go singles, because she was never infatuated with any one."

She liked to dance and dress up.

"They all do," her father observed philosophically.

She liked to swim, skate and play tennis.

"She had a big on golf," he remarked, "but it was one thing she couldn't do well—play golf. She hated to admit it, but she was always what they call 'a dub.'"

WORKED AS SCHOOLGIRL

It was while Rita was in high school that she made her how to the world singing hot dogs and mocha and java across a counter.

Mrs. Johnson had secured the concession for what is now one of Worcester's smartest restaurants. It's on the third floor of a large department store in Main street.

"I told Rita that it would be good experience for her to work with me," the mother said. "I'll give her the credit she deserves. There was nobody in the place who worked harder. She'd wait on table, tend the cash register or help out in the kitchen.

"But you know how it is—young folks don't like to work with their parents because they think the others think they're favorites. Rita told me that Jimmie Mattimore had offered her a job on one of his three roadside stands.

"I told her that that would be good experience, too. So she took the job, at the stand down on the Boston Turnpike. Of course I wanted her to stay with me, but I believe in letting youngsters try what they want to do."

PROUD OF RITA'S IDEA

Mrs. Johnson was rather proud explaining this:

"Rita wasn't working for Jimmie for more than a short while when she inaugurated what they call 'curb service,' she said. "She saw that lots of people stopped their autos and hesitated about coming in for their hot dogs and sandwiches. So she got the girls to take the orders at the cars. All the places do that now, I guess."

But Rita wasn't satisfied to keep on at a counter, either at Mattimore's place or at mother's.

"She still used to go up to her room and read passages from books, out loud," Mrs. Johnson went on "We didn't realize how serious she was about being an actress and like most parents we didn't encourage the idea. But she had it. And she stuck to it.

"After she got through Commerce high, I told her that my restaurant concession was a nice business, and that she could learn enough about it to take over when I got too old, but she said she'd save some money and wanted to take dramatic lessons.

"It was her own money and Bill and I told her that it was all right with us."

TOILED WHILE STUDENT

So that's how Rita enrolled in the New England Conservatory of Music—still working. Three days a week she took lessons from Professor Clayton D. Gilbert, sponsor of Alice Brady, Osgood Perkins and other stars.

Louise Galloway, stage star of Yesteryear, singled her out. Professor Gilbert admits that he had something to do with that.

"Rita had the temperament," he explained. "She needed experience and those things, but she had the most important quality for an actress. And she was a hard worker. She was always willing to pitch in. I was delighted when she got her chance to go with the Brookfield Players."

Miss Johnson played stock with Miss Galloway for two years. She graduated from "biz" to leads. She barnstormed New England towns in one-night stands, spent the summer of 1935 at the old Beach Theater in Falmouth. Finally she decided to head for Broadway.

Walter Winchell was watching her and he gave her a chance on radio. She clicked. Offers of all kinds came. Rita took them all. A baser girl you'd never see. And she still kept reading aloud in her room, whoever she was.

GOOD "NOTICES" HERE

She won a small part with Walter Hampden in his "Cyrano de Bergerac." Then she caught on with George M. Cohan in "Fulton of Oak Falls." Her appearance in Boston last January and February brought her good notices.

It was only a matter of time. But Rita had one more discouraging experience before she arrived. A send for Sam Goldwyn gave her a screen test and she was told that it "flopped."

Rita was used to rebuffs, though. When she got another chance to take a test for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer (Sam's old company), too, she took it. Last March.

She screened so well that they gave her the lead in "The Umbrella Man."

And then Jean Harlow died.

Francis, M-G-M looked for the girl who could succeed.

It was a unanimous ballot that elected Rita Johnson. And that's the explanation of how a little Worcester girl came to star in Hollywood from serving hot dogs in Worcester.

HOT DOGS TO HOLLYWOOD

Boston Evening American Photo

She had ideas even as a hot dog salesman, her mother explained, telling how Rita Johnson inaugurated "curb service" in the weiner game. Now Rita has been chosen to succeed Jean Harlow, and Hollywood expects a new twist to glamour. Rita began life in Worcester, the daughter of a street car operator.

College Bath Photo Girl Weds Her Champion

And so Heloise Martin and Ernie Bergman were married . . .

The secret of their wedding, which took place in Chicago, was revealed today by the bridegroom himself.

Even before she let a cheeky magazine cameraman photograph her smiling sweetly in the shower bath, Heloise Martin was known to her friends as the kind of girl things happen to. Interesting things.

Fresh out of high school, she decided education wasn't worth what it cost, so she left her Des Moines home, accompanied by Pa and Ma, and moved into New York to start a career.

In practically no time, she was dancing at the Hollywood Restaurant, getting other engagements, cultivating contacts with the movie world.

Something over two years ago, she met Rudy Vallee, world's Number One crooner. Himself a Yale grad, Rudy confirmed her a college education was worth while. She entered Drake University, in Iowa.

BEAT UP EDITOR

Then, a few months ago, the fates decided her life had been dull and female long enough and two men students had a duel over her.

That's what it amounted to when 20-pound Ernie Bergman, now her bridegroom, gave a merciless thumping to the editor of a college publication who wouldn't apologize for an alleged insult to Miss Martin.

What the young editor had done was run a caption "Hot tip for the day" above the picture of dreamy-lined Heloise.

"But Bergmann felt he had a special right to break a lance in defense of the honor of the coed, for in another picture he posed with her for 'Good Night Kids,' and liked it very much. Even then he regarded Heloise as his girl.

The shower bath incident was what made Miss Martin front page news everywhere. A commercial magazine was making a series of pictures of events in the daily life of Drake coeds. College authorities were in favor. They needed the advertising.

"Girl in Bath" was the pose selected for her, and she went through with it, although all inside she wore a very thin bathing suit when she got under the shower and faced the camera.

GUEST AT HARVARD

She played the RKO-Boston in April, first posing in new shower bath pictures and showing an aptitude in stirring. She was a backstage guest of Harvard's Hasty Pudding Club during the production of its annual play.

To Boston reporters, Miss Martin confessed she sort of hated to leave college. She is genuinely interested in learning, and intends to study by herself.

Franklin, Jr., Gets Fitted For Wedding Suit

New York, June 12—Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., took time out from his Harvard graduation plans for a quick trip here to try on the new morning suit he will wear at his wedding on June 30 to Ethel duPont.

Excited, America's soon-to-be No. 1 bridegroom posed good-humoredly for photographers as the suit was being fitted by the tailors.

Here's the bridal wardrobe of Roosevelt Junior:

Two cutaways.
Two suits of gabardine.
One suit of shetland.
One chalk stripe, single-breasted.
One chalk stripe, double-breasted.
One white dinner jacket.

And the tailoring job they are doing in anticipation of his marriage is a positive pleasure.

WAIST SNUG 33

Put the tape measure around his chest and it stretches to a 42.

Then slip it around his waist and it isn't even a snug 33.

"Yes, sir," reported Harry Worley, of the Fifth avenue tailoring firm of Ken-Wells, Ltd., "it is a pleasure to cut a suit for a figure like that."

Meanwhile, from the Wilmington, (Del.) home of the duPonts, details of the wedding party were announced.

Mrs. John Boettiger of Seattle (Wash.) will be matron of honor and Miss Aimee duPont maid of honor. Mrs. Boettiger is a sister of the bridegroom.

Roosevelt's best man will be his younger brother, John A. Roosevelt.

The wedding will be at Christ Church, near Greenville, Del., home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene duPont.

COLLEGE PUBLICITY STUNT LEADS GIRL TO STAGE FAME AND BRIDAL

And the climax. In the arms of her brand new husband, Heloise is shown here being soundly kissed by Ernie (Bus) Bergman. She has just married him in Chicago.

STALIN, HITLER SPURN ARMY ALLIANCE

(Editor's Note: Stalin and Hitler have turned thumbs down on attempts of aides to bring about a military understanding between Russia and Germany which might have dominated Europe. This is the significance of the latest Moscow mass trial, H. R. Knickerbocker states.)

London, June 12 (INS)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany and Dictator Josef Stalin of Soviet Russia remain sworn enemies today.

Both dictators have repudiated attempts of their military chieftains to bring about an understanding between the Red army and the Reichswehr which would have led to peace between the two countries, but also to an alliance dominating Europe.

This is the meaning of the death sentences meted out to eight Red army generals in Moscow.

ARMY HEADS FRIENDLY

Stalin today is repudiating with lethal violence the same suggestion which Hitler put aside five months ago. But important is the fact, now emphasized by the Moscow trial, that both Red army and Reichswehr leaders favored co-operation.

Early this year the Reichswehr high command submitted a memorandum to Hitler pointing out in th emost tactful terms, first, that Germany under present conditions is so hemmed by enemies that success in war would be unlikely, and second, that the Soviet Union has become too powerful to be attacked successfully.

It was pointed out that it might be wisest to turn to Bismarck's policy of an alliance with Russia, which, combining natural resources with Germany's industry, could present Europe a force capable of sweeping everything before it.

Hitler refused to consider it, declaring the idea of association with Bolsheviks utterly repugnant.

COUNTRIES CLOSER

He thus ignored the unpleasant observations of outsiders that evolution of Stalin's Soviet Union towards nationalism and Nazi Germany towards state capitalism has brought the two countries structurally much closer to one another.

Hitler, however, merely rejected the suggestion.

Stalin reacted to these suggestions with severity much greater than Hitler's, just as the Soviets' two-year blood purge of thousands since Sergei Kirov's murder was greater than Hitler's week-end purge of hundreds on June 30, 1934.

Instead of merely reprimanding the generals for meddling in politics, Stalin arrested and brought them to the present trial, charged with treason.

8 Red Army Standouts Face Firing Squad

Moscow, June 12 (AP)—Soviet Russia sent to the firing squad today eight men who once were the flowers of the mighty Red army and proclaimed through its press: "Dogs die like dogs!"

The eight generals went to certain swift death on confession and conviction of treason. There was no appeal from the verdict of the military collegium of the supreme court, which branded these traitors in the spy service of a foreign enemy.

Secret Society Blamed in Brothers' Deaths

Paris, June 12 (INS)—Existence of a new secret international society, similar in its methods to the Black Hand, was seen today in the slaying of two Italian anti-Fascists in a clump of woods near Bagnoles de L'Orne.

The victims were Carlo Rosselli and his brother, Nello, who were believed "taken for a ride" by political adversaries because of their violent opposition to the Fascist regime.

As Giles was doing this heroic work, Emile Dubiel, former end and captain of the 1936 Harvard football team, ran to the nearest police box. SPAIN REBELS WARN BILBAO

Bilbao, Spain, June 12 (INS)—Spain's Rebel high command has formerly threatened the Basque government that 300 insurgent planes will raze the besiged capital to the ground, semi-official Basque sources said today.

The claimed the city will be subjected to treatment similar to that meted out, according to Loyalist officials, to Guernica several weeks ago, when it was claimed Rebel planes bombed and blasted that town to a heap of ruins.

Bilbao Waterfront Bombed by Rebels

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, June 12 (AP)—Bilbao waterfront houses were set aflame today by combined aerial and artillery bombardment as an insurgent offensive was reported to have cracked the outer line of the city's "last stand defenses."

Franco Makes Offer to Drop Foreigners

Burgos, Spain, June 12 (AP)—General Francisco Franco, with what he hoped would be his final Bilbao offensive under way, disclosed today he would decree the withdrawal of foreigners from his legions if the Madrid-Valencia government would do likewise.

R. I. Troopers Halt Speeders by Shots

Wickford, R. I., June 12—A six-mile chase on the Post road, at speeds ranging from 70 or 80 miles per hour, ended abruptly today when state troopers shot the tires on a machine containing two men and two boys, forcing it to halt.

The chase began when the car, traveling at a high speed, refused to halt at the command of a trooper. The men and boys were taken to Wickford barracks for questioning. The boys said they were Providence runaways, and were hitch-hiking when offered a ride by the two men.

Parker Convinced Wendel Is Guilty

Newark, N. J., June 12 (US)—Ellie Parker, Sr., veteran Burlington County, N. J. sleuth, is still convinced that Paul H. Wendel committed the Lindbergh kidnaping.

The detective disclosed his belief from the witness stand in Federal court here, where he spent the day defending himself against charges that he conspired with his son, Ellie, Jr., to kidnap Wendel and force a fake confession from him.

FEDERAL SPENDING BEST, SAYS HOPKINS

Federal relief spending is the best insurance American business has today, according to Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator.

In a speech directed to 72 graduating young executives of Babson Institute, Wellesley, and read by his assistant, Aubrey Williams, the relief administrator declared:

"Let the memory of 1929 keep you from demolishing the system of protective insurance which the government has set up in the work and security Programs.

"To demolish this program before business has absorbed the unemployed will save for business a few pennies in taxes, but for every penny it will save from Uncle Sam, business will have to give dollars to future depressions."

Threatened by a sit-down strike by WPA workers who cause to came to plead, Hopkins avoided what might have proved an embarrassing situation when he was ordered to appear before a hearing of the Senate appropriations committee in Washington today.

PLANNED SIT-DOWN

A delegations of the White Collar Workers' Alliance, composed of workers on WPA writing and art projects, reportedly had planned to block the path of Hopkins' incoming train by sitting on the rails; on the grounds that he had refused them a conference.

Hopkins labelled his speech as one calculated to "bring a somewhat apoplectic reaction from certain old-line business men, who have now come to believe that because business in general no longer needs large-scale government assistance, the unemployed no longer need it either."

WEAR '38 LEVEL

"I can see no choice," he said, "short of inviting a repetition of 1929, other than to carry on with a policy of protective spending against depression."

Recovery has now advanced to the point where production, measured in absolute terms, is about equal to 1929, the relief expert stated.

"Instead of 15,000,000 unemployed that we had in March, 1933, we now have eight or nine million."

Blaine T. Fairless, Pittsburgh, Pa., son of the president of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, was class marshal of the graduating group to receive diplomas from Roger Babson, founder of the Institute.

Hopkins was introduced by Carl D. Smith, president of the Institute, with an audience of more than 1000 students, parents, civic and WPA officials and other guests in attendance.

4 Children Escape Injury When Auto Crashes Home

Alfeshore, June 12—Four small children narrowly escaped serious injury today when an automobile crashed through the front wall of their cottage home in Pleasant street, knocking them out of bed and showering them with debris.

They were bruised and frightened, but were otherwise unharmed.

The automobile was driven, police said, by Albert Burton, 43, of Dennis street, Attleboro.

He was taken to Sturdy Memorial Hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain and a broken collar bone.

The house into which the auto plunged was occupied by Albert Bennett, 45, and his family.

The machine crashed through a foundation wall, across a piazza and into the cottage living room, where the children were sleeping.

The building was wrecked by the impact.

Police estimated damage at $1000.

U. S. WILL TRIM RELIEF CASH

Washington, June 12 (INS)—In an effort to stamp out waste in relief operations, Congress today appeared headed toward a new mandatory policy of compelling local contributions to help bear the federal burden of caring for the needy unemployed.

The $1,500,000,000 relief bill already has been expanded by a Senate appropriations subcommittee to compel a local contribution of 40 per cent of the cost of any non-federal relief project. This would apply equally to states, counties, cities or their political subdivisions and to all manner of relief projects.

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, already has endorsed the local contribution theory and lined up all of his big handling of recent relief appropriations. He was closeted this morning with the full Senate appropriations committee in secret session.

The Brighter Side

Damon Runyon

A leading store for men in Chicago, thinks we are away out of line in our estimate of ten pounds as the lowest possible weight in clothing affects that a man can attain arrayed for a summer day.

Our readers may recall that we gave vent to a mild beef in this column recently about the disparity in the weight of apparel that public usage requires of ladies and gents, especially as arrayed for a summer day.

We pointed out that the girls have all the best of the deal, because they can go about in clothing that weighs two pounds less than a straw hat, and pass for being smartly dressed, while a gentleman has to carry a load of duds that Wild Admiral would have to think twice about lugging a mile and a half.

We might add that our remarks were received with sullen ire of cheers from long suffering gentlemen.

LADIES LIGHTLY CLAD

The other evening, we ran into some of these volunteer crusaders at dinner time in front of a Broadway restaurant. He was down to a pair of trousers, sport shirt, and sport shoes. We will assume that he wore underwear, though we are not certain.

Any way, this gentleman looked cool and comfortable in the heat of a right hot evening, and he displeased himself to us with some pride, and we invited him to dine with us in the restaurant.

A couple of ladies entered the place just ahead of us. They were the sheerest of summer dresses, and fairly low in front. Well, low enough. They were both hatless, and practically shoeless, unless you think things with cut-out toes and cut-out heels shoes. One of them wore no stockings.

HORRORS! NO COAT?

Then, when the head waiter finally turned to us, he took one swivel at our friend's attire, and shouted:

"No Good! Out!"

"Why?" we demanded.

"No coat," said the head waiter. "He cannot eat in here without a coat."

"Those ladies have no coats," we suggested. "One of them has no shoe-kings, either."

"That's different," the head waiter said. "They're ladies. What do you think this joint is anyways—a joint? Besides, your friend's chest shows through that shirt."

"The ladies' chests show, too," we said.

"That's different," the head waiter insisted. "They're ladies."

We finally compromised by the head waiter borrowing a jacket from a bus boy that looked worse than our friend's sport shirt, and it was permitted to sit down and eat, though we still think the service given us was some points below par.

THE WEIGHT OF IT

However, that did not trouble us as much as the burning injustice of the discrimination between our friend and the ladies. Once for ounce, he had on a lot more than they had, and if we knew of any tribunal that takes account of these matters, we would file a brief, forthwith.

The Chicago store for men presents its with a set of figures to refute our ten pounds estimate, claiming that it can outfit a gentleman from top to toe at five pounds six ounces but we think they should have sent someone over into the ladies' department to find out what the garb of the gaily apparelled lady weighs. Our point is that there is too great a disparity.

The weights submitted by the store are interesting, at that. A Palm Beach suit tips at 32 ounces, making it the heaviest item in the lot. The rest of it goes like this:

Air-line straw hat, 6 ounces; pair ventilated oxfords, 29 ounces; pair silk socks, 1 ounce; tab-bottom shirt 7 ounces; pair cashmere shorts, 3 ounces; linen and cotton shirts, 2 ounces; Palm Beach belt, 3 ounces. Palm Beach tie, 1 ounce; pair garters, 2 ounces.

We are going to submit the list to that Broadway headwaiter, to see if he considers this sufficient apparel for a guest. We are not sure how he stands on ventilated oxfords.

Hollywood Opera Era On Way, Mary Garden Tells Ann Marsters

YESTERYEAR'S STAR STILL SHINES, WRITES GIRL REPORTER

Diva Enthusiastic In Search for New Talent

Opera will have its greatest development in Hollywood, says Mary Garden, in an interview with Ann Marsters, Boston girl reporter. The former diva, whose voice charmed throngs during her long career in America and across seas, predicts opera will be immeasurably more beautiful when screen production is perfected. Songbirds will be chosen for grace of figure and personal charms as well as for singing ability. This is another of the new Ann Marsters in Hollywood series to be found daily in the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser.

CHAPTER 20
Hollywood, Cal.

Mary Garden is still the great prima donna—in every inch of her.

She could never live that down. She could never retire to a calm, quiet existence. Unquenchable energy bubbles and overflows in Mary Garden. She is, and always shall be, the personification of everything that an opera star should be—but so seldom is.

Now, Mary Garden has launched herself upon a new career. It is in Hollywood, at the M-G-M studios, where she will search for talent, train singers, and help adapt operas for motion pictures. She starred in Debussy's "Pelleas and Melisande," or as the temperamental Garden of "Carmen," you would not be disappointed in the woman she is today.

Foresees New Era

Her enthusiasm about opera for the movies, fairly takes your breath away. She fascinates and overwhelms you with her impulsive gestures and superlatives, her brilliance.

"Hollywood," she began, "is a honeycomb for opera, and talent will flock in it like bees.

"I say that opera is coming here. In three years Hollywood will be producing the greatest of the operas.

"Oh—I do not mean the movies will produce it as MY grand opera was produced; not as it is being produced in the opera houses.

"It will be a new form of opera—an enormous, magnificent form. It will be a glamorous, romantic spectacle. It will retain the great, thrilling arias, but it will discard the foreign speech and the absurdities of opera which the motion pictures public could not be expected to accept."

Ban on Fat

Can you see it as Mary Garden imagines it? With all the facilities and all the money that motion pictures have at their command, opera could be and will be, Miss Garden says, a glorious form of popular entertainment.

"And we shall have beauty in our movie operas," she continued. "We shall not tolerate FAT. That is the very thing that is wrong with opera today. That is why it has lost its glamour.

"When singers become associated with opera, they immediately take the attitude that it doesn't matter how much weight they gain. They say they need weight to increase their energy. That's hosh! It's just a lazy excuse to eat.

"Slim people have MORE energy. I weighed 98 pounds when I made my debut, and today I weigh 128. Even when my life was most strenuous, I was never troubled by lack of energy."

Physical beauty and vocal beauty is not a difficult combination to find, says Miss Garden. At present, she has six young singers in training for operatic productions. For the past year they have been studying in Paris.

"Five of them are girls," she said, "beautiful girls—and one is a handsome young tenor. They are all Americans, and they all have marvelous talent.

"And right here at this studio there is a young girl who is causing a great furore. She is little Betty Jaynes who made her debut in Chicago last winter.

"It is in such a little circle now—this opera idea. But it will expand and expand until you will see Hollywood adapting such an opera as 'Louise,' and bringing all its dramatic romance, its intriguing plot to the screen."

Mary Garden made a sweeping gesture with her hands, as though the whole production were there, before her eyes.

"And think—just think," she went on, her eyes snapping with enthusiasm, "what a glorious, exciting thing 'Faust' could be on the screen—or 'Salome.'

"Oh, yes—the possibilities are limitless.

"I shall continue searching for talent. I shall look through the east and middle west, and I'll keep my headquarters here in Hollywood.

"For here is where the future of opera lies! And soon, the greatest teachers and composers and singers will congregate here."

Perhaps she is right—for she makes you feel that anything and everything is possible.

And yet—after a talk with Mary Garden, it isn't so much the significance of her words that lingers with you. It is the way the words flow from her throat with such vigor and assurance. It is the richness of her voice, which Debussy once characterized as "so curiously personal."

MARY GARDEN

The unquenchable energy that bubbles and overflows in Mary Garden—prima donna of yesterday—has launched her on a new career, the search for singing talent for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "Her enthusiasm about opera for the movies fairly takes your breath away. She fascinates and overwhelms you with her impulsive gestures, her superlatives, her brilliance," Boston's girl reporter Ann Marsters writes, fresh from an interview with the opera star of yesteryear.

Lloyds Refuses Candidate Bet

Arthur Blanchard, candidate for mayor of Cambridge, has found something Lloyds of London will not bet on.

They will not bet on his chances of being elected mayor of Cambridge.

Hearing the tradition that Lloyds would wager on almost anything under the sun, Blanchard wrote, asking what odds they would quote on his chances of being elected.

The answer came today.

"We do not think the risk mentioned in your communication is one that would be undertaken by any of Lloyds underwriters," it said.

"My campaign theme song will be "Lloyds of London Falling Down," said the disillusioned candidate.

HEARST TROPHY IS PRESENTED RIFLE TEAM

Gloucester, June 12—The William Randolph Hearst rifle trophy today rested in an exhibition room at the Gloucester High School, along with four other like trophies the institution's crack R. O. T. C. cadets have won in the past seven years.

Presentation of the trophy was made by John J. Connors, assistant publisher of the Boston Evening American, who read a telegram of congratulation from Mr. Hearst.

"A nation like the United States, subjected to envy and jealousy of a hostile and insufficiently civilized world should be able to defend itself against latent hostility," the telegram read.

"A Democratic nation does not want a large standing army. The only effective alternative is a competent citizen soldiery. Military training for young men of the nation in schools and colleges was favored by the founders of the republic.

"This trophy is being awarded, therefore, not merely to the winners of an ordinary contest of skill but to young Americans who have cultivated physical and mental gifts toward the possible defense of our country in times of danger."

The trophy was presented to Captain Paul McPherson of the rifle team, which scored 918 points to top all other high school teams throughout New England.

In addition to Capt. McPherson the students who comprise the rifle team are Major F. Harrison Poole, Lieutenant William J. Sutherland, Sergeant Paul E. Graham and Corporal Robert E. Noble. They were trained by Capt. Raymond E. Shum, U. S. A.

The trophy presentation was the climax of the schools's field day marking 32 consecutive years of military training. More than 500 cadets paraded through the town and thousands lined the route.

Wm. Powell Seals His Love for Jean In Costly Shrine

Hollywood, June 12 (UP)—As a last expression of his love for Jean Harlow, a costly private crypt in the "Sanctuary of Benediction" at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale, has been purchased by William Powell, motion picture star and the man for beautiful actress loved.

Powell sought and received from Miss Harlow's mother, Mrs. Jean Bello, and the actress' father, Dr. Montclair Carpenter, permission thus to show the depth of his feeling for her.

The conference followed a sad pilgrimage of Powell, Mrs. Bello, Dr. Carpenter, and Miss Harlow's aunt, Mrs. Jeffy Dalton, to Forest Lawn, where funeral services for the star, who died last Monday, were held on Wednesday.

The room chosen is inlaid with rare marble and is in the Mausoleum where lie the bodies of Marie Dressler, Irving Thalberg, and many other celebrities of motion pictures and the stage.

The massive bronze and silver casket, with its nameplate bearing a replica of Miss Harlow's signature, will be entombed in the crypt, and sealed in marble, early next week.

'Old Grads' Hold Spotlight at B. U.

Boston University's "old grads" from all parts of the country gathered here today, more than 1000 strong, to launch a day of festivities at William E. Nickerson field, Weston.

Festivities were scheduled to begin at 10:30 a. m. and continue until after midnight. Reunions of classes from the class of 1875 to that of last June were arranged.

Lieutenant Colonel Clarence M. McMurray was named as leader of the alumni parade, opening the program.

The William Fairfield Warren cup was offered, as usual, to the class having most members present. Another cup was the prize for the class most originally costumed.

Jean Harlow's Loyalty To Memory of Bern Won Friends, Public

In the days following Paul Bern's death, Jean's fan mail was carefully read by her studio in an effort to discover what the public's attitude would be toward her.

Would Bern's suicide ruin her career? Would she be scorned by a misunderstanding public who would blame her for the tragedy?

Her friends pleaded with Jean to make a satisfactory explanation. Her mother, coaxed, her studio ordered—but Jean wasn't fighting for herself.

Even in her hysteria and grief, she said again and again that Paul Bern had done her no "frightful wrong"; that he was the finest man she had ever known; that they had not quarreled; that they had been very happy.

It is probable that Jean Harlow never recovered entirely from the horrible experience she went through at that time. She returned to her work as an escape and a refuge.

Asked Hard Work

"What I need is work," she said. "Hard work will save me from a breakdown and will help me to forget. It is the only normal outlet for grief."

So she returned to MGM to complete the picture, "Red Dust." She had changed, of course. She had lost her spontaneous gaiety—and she never fully regained it. She had become a mature, serious young woman—and she believed that she was through with love.

"I cannot say, definitely, that I will never love again," she said, "because I know that love comes when it is least expected. But I believe, and I hope, that I will never again fall in love.

"I seem to be fated to find tragedy whenever I have convinced myself I will be happy. Right now, nothing has any meaning to me except work."

Several months later she said to her friends:

"I know that Paul would want me to marry again. He taught me what true companionship can mean—and he would be the last person in the world to want to deprive me of that gift. All that love means to me, now, is companionship—the sharing of what means most to two people."

Picture Test for Jean

When the picture, "Red Dust," was released Jean's friends and the studio held their breath and wondered how it would be received.

They believed it was dreadfully unfortunate that, at the time of her husband's suicide, "Red-Headed Woman" was playing in innumerable theaters throughout America. Because in that picture, Jean played the part of a mercenary opportunist, who thought nothing of wrecking a man's home.

Would the public, they wondered, confuse Jean Harlow herself with that type of woman, when what she needed was the public's sympathy?

The reception of "Red Dust," was the greatest personal triumph that Jean Harlow ever experienced. From it she learned that people, after all, had understanding and tolerance and sympathy.

The picture was a success, and Jean's future, as an actress, was bright and safe.

In tomorrow's installment of Jean Harlow's life story, which will appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, Miss Marsters tell how Jean met and married Hal Rosson, ace cameraman.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Girl Who Wants Husband Must Make Friends Among Men

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The old-fashioned boarding house, now almost complete a relic of the past, was Cupid's best friend.

As my older readers will remember, there were all kinds of boarding houses—those for those who rented suites and dressed just a little ahead of the current vogue and those for others who had to be satisfied with a brass bed and wash bowl.

But, and I say it with every degree of truth, more than a few of the millionaires of today met their wives in these room-and-board abodes.

The front parlor was a truly wonderful place. There the very ordinary looking young lady could sit down at the piano, finger the keys and play "Listen to the Mocking Bird" or "The Maiden's Prayer." And no matter how badly she played, the boy friend was sure to think her a veritable opera diva.

You see, men in that day knew nothing of the radio and little of the phonograph. Girls did not have the competition they face today.

However, though we mourn the old boarding house with its dinner matrimonial advantages, we can have the satisfaction of knowing that there are substitutes and good ones.

MEET PEOPLE:

There are the beaches, the summer hotels, the dude ranches, the excursion train and the midnight "sails." On these trips young women meet young men. Meeting means friendships and friendships marriage.

My advice to all girls this summer is: Go out. Mingle with people. Cultivate good acquaintances. And be the kind of person you think a worthwhile man would want to marry.

Staying at home, wishing, vainly hoping—this is the combination that will never get any girl a husband. The thing to do is TO MEET PEOPLE. Propinquity is Cupid's chief aide. A girl has to be on the spot if she wants friends.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I was certainly glad to read your answer to "Discouraged Wife's letter in your column the other day.

You told her it was a mistake to go from shop to shop trying to save a couple of pennies on a head of cabbage, a loaf of bread or a pound of meat; that she'd better save her health and strength for her children.

I used to do that, and would sometimes spend two hours trying to save ten cents.

My lungs were always weak, and trudging around in the rain to save a dime brought on T. B., so I am now in a sanitarium.

My children are with my mother, and my husband is—Heaven only knows where.

The pennies saved were not worth the sacrifice.

DESOLATE.

DEAR FRIEND:

Thank you for approving my suggestion, that it's better to save health and shoe leather rather than a few pennies in the interest of a small bargain.

And please try to take a more cheerful point of view. Tuberculosis is not what it was some years ago. Many cures have been brought about through fresh air, rest and nourishing food. I'm glad you have a good mother to look out for your children while you are convalescing.

Write again and tell me how you're getting along.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The worst fault he had was that he drank too much at times, and I have been embarrassed when in his company.

Still, I loved him and always thought that when we were married and had a comfortable home of our own he would give up drinking.

He went away this past winter, and I didn't see him for two months. While he was away he wrote and said it would be better for me if our engagement were broken — that he wasn't good enough for me, and that he never would be worthy of the love I have given him.

He asked me to keep his ring as a remembrance of some of the happy times we had together, but said that his love for me made it seem best we should be only friends.

My mother is suspicious about the real cause which prompted this letter.

JANE T. R.

DEAR JANE:

I am not entirely free from suspicion as to the causes which prompted your fiance's letter. Men do not come a humble as that.

Whatever may be their faults, they feel worthy of the best any woman can give them. They may have moments of distrust and flashes of inferiority, BUT THEY DO NOT LAST LONG.

When a man tells a girl that he isn't good enough for her, it is usually a polite way of getting out of an engagement. This man may realize that liquor has already made such inroads on his character that he could never make any woman happy.

But why doesn't he brace up and quit drinking?

There are cures for this most unfortunate habit, and there is also 2nd old-fashioned grit, not to mention character and backbone.

If you were my daughter, I should feel that you were well out of the arrangement.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Your Figure, Madame!"

FOODS CAN BE LOW IN CALORIES

By IDA JEAN KAIN

YOU are always looking for some slim-while-you-eat diet . . . and there is one! Meat, milk and eggs help you to get slim, for protein is the magic element in the reducing diet.

It is a scientific fact that you can lose weight faster on a low calorie diet—with most of the energy in protein, a decreased amount of carbohydrates and the fats sharply curtailed.

The body uses more calories on a protein-rich diet, and the makes reducing easier. Dr. Jean L. Bogert, in her excellent book "Dietitics Simplified," explains that. More fuel, or energy, will be used in the body on a protein-rich diet than on one where the same amount of energy is furnished by carbohydrates or fat.

This reducing phenomenon is termed the specific dynamic action of protein, because protein speeds up tissue metabolism. What this means is that you lose weight faster on the same number of calories when liberal amounts of protein are included in the diet.

Protein in the form of lean meat, skimmed milk or buttermilk, and eggs should be the basis of your reducing menu. You will meet your daily protein requirements if you take a liberal serving of lean meat, one glass of buttermilk or skimmed milk and a serving of cheese or two glasses of milk, and one to two eggs.

These, together with the small quantity of protein furnished in breads, cereals and certain vegetables, will be adequate.

In addition to their stimulating effect on the metabolism, Dr. Bogert points out that meat and eggs have a high satiety value. In other words these foods "stick to the ribs" and are your mainstay against hunger between low calorie meals.

Satiety value plays a very important role in your reducing diet, since every hunger pang is a temptation to quit the diet. Foods differ in their satiety value, as Dr. Bogert explains: Fluids and fibrous vegetables are bulky and filling, but they leave the stomach quickly, so that you seem to be chronically hungry. Foods other than protein recommended for their satiety values are those which require much chewing—as toast, crispy biscuits, bulky salads and cole slaw. All these foods impart the illusion of being well fed. Hot soups and beverages give comfort and satisfy all out of portion to the low calorie content. Sweets, or desserts at the end of the meal also help to give a feeling of satiety to the reducing diet.

There are treats in all foods; you are aware in the making of a reducing diet.

Write to Ida Jean Kain, care of this paper, and ask for the leaflets "Protective Diet Chart" and "Calorie Chart," which list the health and energy values of foods. Send a large, stamped and addressed envelope to the Boston Evening American.

YET HAVE HEAVY SATIETY VALUE

Frosted Drinks For Summer

By MARTHA LEE

NOW that "Ole Man Summer" seems to have moved in to stay for a while, our thought runs to ways and means of making his visit as pleasant as possible.

Do you have your supply of summer beverages and sandwich "makin's" ready for the thirsty mobs that are apt to descend on you at all times of the day and night.

To your list of foods that you regularly have on hand you will want to add a list of supplies to have on "tap" for impromptu entertaining when friends drop in on hot days. And by all means lay in a large enough supply at the first of the season so that you will always be prepared.

We just naturally think of iced tea, iced coffee, lemonade, iced chocolate and ginger ale. But the smart hostess is the one who has a list of new and interesting beverages in her recipe file that will delight her guests, rather than just please them.

Just as a suggestion we offer the following list of supplies to have on hand. You will no doubt want to add your own favorites to this list.

Canned lemon juice
Special blend of tea for iced tea
Canned grapefruit juice
Coffee
Cream
Ginger ale
Grape juice
Mint
Maraschino cherries
Chocolate syrup
Soda water
Simple syrup
Canned orange juice
Pineapple juice
Beverage powder
Ice cream "Mix"
Lemons
Milk

When we have our supply on hand, the next thing of importance is to get a list of recipes for combining them in the most refreshing manner.

Two hostess join so refreshingly in the Frosted Grape Juice Whip, and it is so easily prepared that everyone who enjoys cooling drinks, summer or winter, will be delighted with it.

FROSTED GRAPE JUICE WHIP

1 liberal scoop of vanilla ice cream
¾ cup grape juice

Whip together until cream is thoroughly dissolved. Serve either with or without straws.

Perhaps the combination of ginger ale and grape juice is not new to you. But it is still as good as the first time these two popular beverages were blended. Combining equal parts of chilled grape juice and ginger ale results in a most delicious and refreshing drink.

While iced tea has been a favorite with most everyone for many, many summers, not everyone knows how to make a perfect glass of iced tea. The hostess who would serve perfect iced tea must omit no part of the preparation instead of hot tea. The water must be freshly boiling, and the pot should be of china, glass or earthenware.

The tea should be put in the freshly-scalded pot. Six teaspoons of good tea to one quart of boiling water gives a strong infusion and allows for dilution by the ice. It should stand for five minutes, then be strained and poured hot and freshly made, over cracked ice in tall glasses. Sugar to taste and drop slices of lemon, orange, etc., if you like, a slice of orange as well or a sprig of mint. For variation, a half-cup of pineapple may be served in each glass, or the tea may be poured over cubes of frozen lemon or lime beverage.

If you must cool the tea before using, it should be made regular strength (one teaspoon tea to one cup boiling water) since there is very little dilution by the ice. Strain and let it stand at room temperature until cool. Then place in the icebox until ready to serve. The first method, however, is preferred for a fresher tasting tea.

For a refreshing and different way of enjoying iced tea, try Tea Sparkler. It is made as follows: 2 tablespoons tea, 2 cups boiling water, 1-3 cup sugar, charged water. Pour freshly boiling water over tea, allow to brew 3 minutes. Strain from leaves, add sugar and stir until dissolved. Cool. Use ¼ cup of the syrup in tall glass, filling with charged water. Serve with slices of lemon and garnish with sprigs of mint, if desired. This syrup will keep for several days in the refrigerator.

GRAPE ICED TEA

3 teaspoons tea
3 cups boiling water
2 cups pure grape juice
4 tablespoons sugar
Juice of two lemons

Pour the boiling water over the tea, stir slightly and allow to stand five minutes. Then strain, add sugar, lemon juice and the grape juice. Chill thoroughly.

CHAPTER 32

"If I sell—say only one lot every two weeks," Ed said, "it'll be between 300 or 400 a month! Nothing cheap about this subdivision. It's going to be the finest residential district in Oakland—or Piedmont—or anywhere around the bay."

"Shalmar is handy to the shopping district—both Lakeshore and Grand avenue," his mother said. "I've always liked it here. If the house was painted, and we had a few improvements in—"

A SHOWDOWN

Afterwards Marie said, "Honey—you shouldn't let your mother think that you're going to stay on here. You ought to tell her that we'll be moving as soon as we can catch up on the back rent!"

"All right, but there's no rush. I haven't got my money yet."

"I know—but when you do—"

When he did he cashed the check brought it home in $20 bills. "Look at that! Not a morning's work. Not so bad, eh?"

His mother pulled down the shades, though it was still light. "Shh! How do you know how many people know you have that? Someone might have followed you."

"For two hundred bucks!"

"I used to carry at least a hundred—never less than fifty," Mr. Wilson said. "It gives a man a feeling—I don't know—makes him feel all right with the world."

His wife looked at him. He rattled the loose change in his pocket.

After dinner Edward said, "How much do I owe you, Mom?"

She looked at him. Her mouth worked, but she said nothing. "Come on, Mom! Tell me!"

In a low voice she said, "You mean, after she came. You paid twice—forty dollars. And fifteen-fifty besides. I did think that as long as Bee—" she couldn't say Bee's name without an effort—"paid $40 that you might try to pay us much, for yourself and her. But whatever you think, senior."

Edward said, "It's two months paid, and three to go. That means I owe you $120."

He counted out the money. Put the remaining $80 in his pocket.

His mother said, "I hope it's safe, that's all. I'll go to the bank first thing in the morning—"

Marie had been thinking. "That isn't fair," she said. "I mean $40 isn't fair. We ought to pay more than that—maybe not twice, because Bee had a nice room, and we—"

"Bee was the girl of the family! And besides, she bought all her own furniture!"

Marie thought of her pink curtains, still in a suitcase under the bed. "I didn't mean it critically. I just meant we ought to pay more than $40."

"I'm glad enough to get the $40."

"But we'll be going soon, and I want it all straight."

TOO LATE!

Edward sicked one under the table, but it was too late.

"You'll be going?"

"Edward and I. We're going to take a small apartment."

"Yes, mom—we thought—"

"You might have told ME" she cried.

"I let her stay, to keep you satisfied. I let the two of you stay and eat the fat of the land my nothing—and then you pay $40 like it was a fortune, after I've lost my license, and been laughed at by every woman on the block!"

"You take and take and take, and then when you get a dollar ahead you want to go. You want to go like your sister. I'm not making my money on you at $40 and don't think you are giving me a profit, because you're not!"

"Forty dollars! Where else could you live for forty dollars, the two of you! Just try! Just try and see! Try living on beer and cooking and see how you like it—I can tell you—I can tell you—"

They sat in silence. Then, after a while, Ed lay on the couch, rattling the newspaper pages with a frozen handkerchief in his limp hand.

Peg had gone for Dr. Shepherd who lived around the corner.

When Peg opened the front door, and they heard Ed, they heard a moan. She said, Mrs. Wilson said, "I don't want you to blame yourself, Eddie—whatever happens, remember, I don't blame you—"

But if it was only indigestion!" Marie said. "Indigestion and getting excited right after a heavy meal, then I simply don't see any reason for staying on—"

"It isn't your mother!"

"Honey, my mother doesn't carry on like that!"

Edward thought of the night they told Julie about their engagement. Marie was over-excited, could have said, but why stress it? "We'll see." he said with the little reserve he had learned to use with Marie, "we'll see. Maybe I'll get a raise in salary. Maybe I'll get a bonus. Maybe I'll get a promotion. Maybe I'll get a lot of things. Let's wait and see."

"It isn't your mother!"

"Honey, my mother doesn't carry on like that!"

Edward thought of the night they told Julie about their engagement. Marie was over-excited, could have said, but why stress it? "We'll see," he said with the little reserve he had learned to use with Marie, "we'll see. Maybe I'll get a raise in salary. Maybe I'll get a bonus. Maybe I'll get a promotion. Maybe I'll get a lot of things. Let's wait and see. I've got a picked job coming."

So they didn't go dancing as they had planned.

But Marie, after a while, thought that was cuckoonest.

She had written Julie about her meeting with Wall Street, and the resulting job in the season. Dutar, Hat Company and that Julie would be coming to another season now considerably changed, to move without further ado.

For seeing Marie's joy in her new-found independence and maternity, Edward, nearly worried himself sick, thinking that Marie was unhappy in her marriage and too proud to admit defeat and come home.

Only Walt's return to Los Angeles for a week and with $70 and the children and a long, detailed account of just how the child looked and just how much in love she and the young man seemed to be saved that which Marie dreaded most of all—an unexpected, unannounced visit from her mother.

"She's doing fine," Walt told Julie, "and I'm darn lucky to have her, not that she's any particular good around the office, because she isn't, as far as assisting with the books goes. But, you'd die, Julie, the girl is a natural salesman. She's out there out trying. She puts a number on and looks up at the buyer and, by gosh, it looks like a million dollars and I get an order.

"Even summer goods I was going to get rid of. There was a pique sailor we were stuck with. Well, I should here you with the business, you have a business of your own. How's it going?"

"Pretty well," Julie said. "But I am going to sell the equipment and get out. I haven't told Marie yet, but that's the idea. Hey library, too. I just kept on for a while, thinking she might come back and want it, but I don't think she will, now, after what you say."

"I stopped all the negotiations when I got that frantic letter of hers, saying she was going to work, but I guess I can do now. You wouldn't feel, then, would you, Walt?"

"No, I wouldn't feel that way Julie."

Well, thanks for that. Maybe it's all right for her to have a job, though I don't think it's right did myself on account of not wanting Charlie to have to support Marie, not that he would have said anything.

"LET HER ALONE"

"But I'm not getting any younger now and some of Charlie's investments are going up pretty well. But don't tell really think that Marie'll make good in the real estate business."

"I know she's the girl for our place. Besides that, I had some photographs taken and they're amazing. She's got what it takes to be a hat model, Julie. She'd be a sensation in a week in New York. You'd see your daughter's face advertising everything from toothpaste to Paris models. Funny she never went into picture. Maybe she ever have a screen test?"

"No, she never got around to it. Don't start that, Walt. Will! You and I got out of the show business and we did 'Flo. Why do you want to push my girl in?"

Let her ALONE!"

But he laughed and he promised and he did not tell Flo. Why do you want to push my girl in?

Now that the girl was finding herself, getting the right materials and outfitters, and working with new and expensive machines, he knew that he had missed at first, breakfast and sun.

He grew morbidly curious of the moods for which she had posed. The general effect might be that of a mermaid, but he seemed to him that it had caught Marie Therese at an unfortunate moment and would have none of it.

The first of July he gave her a raise.

"A hundred and fifty a month! But I don't see how it's worth that much," she cried, startled and incredulous.

"Listen, little one." Walt said, "I am a kind-hearted guy and I give nickels, sometimes even dimes, to fellows that are down-and-outers. Sometimes I give them to fellows that are hungry. I have a wife and two small mouths. But business is business. If you don't pay somebody a salary it is on the short side. You earn more than I'm paying you, if you get the idea. But don't think anybody else would pay you more than me, because we're all the same."

She laughed and put her two hands in his. "Walt, you're funny! But if you do that every month it, I'm going to take it, because I'm not going to have you going to have a place of our own and I see any reason for staying on."

"It isn't your mother!"

"Honey, my mother doesn't carry on like that!"

"It's three blocks from the lake, with a view, and it has three rooms and it's furnished, and only costs $30 furnished, because they are an estate. Honey, I know there are an estate. Honey, I know there aren't a car right now, it's all right with me."

When she stopped crying and stopped kissing him, she said, "I'm going to have a piano in there, too."

It was no partial to music. It was that Marie seems really. The sort that could make a party and some bank into dancing. Then, she was a home or three, and, Then, she was a home or three, and opened the door with the key.

Mrs. Wilson was so new and so much in love with everything that Marie didn't mind a bit. She didn't mind anything either, now loved it.

THE VARIOUS SUMMER activities which are just beginning to get under way along the North Shore, are receiving a temporary setback this afternoon, when society's attention is devoted almost exclusively to the wedding of Elizabeth Sawyer and Charles Mixter, Jr. . . . Interest in sports and things of that nature is being temporarily suspended as everyone along the shore dons his best bib and tucker and drives over to Christ Church in Hamilton to attend the ceremony . . .

LUCY COCHRANE

Elizabeth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer of Dartmouth street and Beaver Pond, Beverly, where the reception takes place, following the ceremony . . . Series of Lectures at Magnolia

PSYCHOLOGISTS could conduct an interesting practical experiment this summer at the Casino in Magnolia . . . The North Shore Babies Hospital is sponsoring a series of current events lectures by Dr. George E. Raiguel, and the committee has just announced that each lecture will be followed by a fashion show and tea . . . So it will be interesting to note if the discussion of politics and current topics will be able to hold its own in the minds of the feminine audience when Dame Fashion arrives with the latest creations from Fifth avenue, to bid for their attention . . .

The lectures will take place on four consecutive Monday afternoons, commencing July 12 . . . Among the girls chosen to model in the fashion shows are Lucy and Nancy Cochrane, Lily and Camilla Warren, the four Sortwell girls, whose mother, Mrs. Alvin Sortwell is supervising the shows, Eleanor Frothingham, Ellen Moseley and Harriet Butler of Salem . . .

* * *

The opening gun for the Ladies Dog Club's annual spring show will boom (figurstively) forth tomorrow afternoon, at one o'clock, on the grounds of the Dedham Country and Polo Club . . . but before the judging actually begins, members of the club are entertaining the judges at luncheon . . . where they will enjoy a sociable hour or so before the spirit of competition enters upon the scene and temporarily makes all concerned friendly enemies . . .

Practically all the judges are from out of town, with the exception of James W. Spring of Boston who will make the selection of "best in show" . . . Miss Eleanor Brigham, Miss Frances Porter, Miss Elise Robbins, and Mrs. Albert Geiger will be among the hostesses at the judges' luncheon . . .

* * *

Mrs. Leslie B. Cutler of Charles River gave a luncheon yesterday afternoon in honor of her debutante daughter, Abigail Ann Cutler, and her future daughter-in-law, Elise R. Russell, who is to be married to Roger W. Cutler, Jr. . . . The party took place at the Dedham Country and Polo Club and was followed by a program of golf and tennis . . . Miss Cutler's formal debut will take place at The Country Club, October 23, when her mother gives a small dance in her honor.

Yale Man Weds Viscountess

London, June 12 (INS)—Viscountess Christine Churchill and Lieutenant Colonel Ralph Heyward Isham, Yale graduate, New York-born financier and sportsman, were married today at the Paddington registry office.

Beauty Answers

Question—My hair is very dry and falls excessively. Someone told me to try halibut oil in my milk or coffee. Do you think this might help? I have a very poor appetite and believe this may be the cause of the poor condition of my scalp.

W. T., Reading

Answer—Yes, I would certainly indulge in a bottle of halibut liver oil and take ten drops a day in milk or coffee. It is quite possible you are not getting the proper proportions of food elements and that your hair is suffering as a result. Scalp massage will help too, but I am glad you are not overlooking the fact that diet has a lot to do with healthy hair as well.

Jane Smith a Weds in Trinity

The bridesmaids Miss Huldah M. Smith, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Robert R. Campbell, sister of the bridegroom, also wore dresses of ivory chiffon and green and white coronets with brown veils, and carried bouquets of roses in all colors.

The Rev. Robert R. Campbell was Mr. Rush's best man and the ushers were Charles Gallaer of Boston, Don E. Cooper, Allen A. Dobey, Robert C. Sullivan, William J. Hartnett and Frank M. Darnall, all of New York.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

I can stand plain stickup guys. I'm frequently one myself. But heaven preserve me from these bleaters with their addled egos.

Conceit is a curious thing. Most of us recognize but one form of it—being stuck up. But, indeed, that is the simplest form o fconceit and the easiest to endure.

The most conceited people are not the vain and boasting bimbos—

They're the lads and lassies with the inferiority complexes—

The family martyrs—

The chronic grievers and regretters—

The sensitive souls—

The people who are always misunderstood—

The terrible tribe of the self-conscious—

And so on and on, far into the blight.

Each and every one of these pests will indignantly deny that they are conceited. They will protest that they are the humblest and most harassed of God's children.

The inferiority complex will relate at length how his life was blasted in youth. Having spent several hours in such gay preliminaries, he will get down to serious business and depict all the failures, frustrations, frets and flutterings of his subsequent career.

The chronic griever, regardless of how ancient his grief, will hang yards and yards of crepe all over the premises.

The regretter will, for the millionth time, confess his transgression and parade his remorse.

Their whines and whimpers, their boots and howls alone have importance. No braggart ever boasted of his exploits more loudly and long than they of their miseries. No egotist was ever more completely gunk in his complacent conceit.

And, of course, that's why they are—human hangnails. If they would take their minds off themselves and focus on the world about them they could soon find a cure for their ailments. But nothing doing!

For, if they were cured, how could they hog the spotlight?

Married Comrades

ALL ARE INTRIGUED OVER BETTY'S "SURPRISE"

By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 337

AS Betty Gibbs enthusiastically exclaimed that they could practice with their new bows and arrows on the "surprise" they had found, her mother gave a startled gasp.

"I thought I was shockproof, but this is the limit," she murmured to Katherine and me. "Wait till you see what the 'surprise' is."

She turned to her young daughter, and gave her a look which the young woman evidently understood.

"Did you mean what you just said?" she asked. "Is this what you're planning to do?"

"I did for a minute," Betty replied—she evidently had been taught the beauty of truth. "But I don't any more," she continued, wriggling under her mother's eyes as if she were a butterfly uncomfortably impaled. "I'm just funning now."

"See that you keep it 'funning'," her mother said significantly. "Remember, if you do anything like that with that toy, it goes straight back to Mr. Graham."

Betty paled and gripped her bow desperately.

"Honest Injun!" she vowed fervently. "I won't do a single thing with it unless I ask you first."

DICKY STOPS QUIBBLING

"That sounds better," her mother said, her tone relaxed and her lips smiling again at her daughter. "Now, don't you think, before it gets dark, you'd better all troop down and see what you found today?"

Betty jumped up and down, her movements somewhat hampered by the bow and arrows.

"Sure thing," she said, with her volatile spirits soaring again at the prospect of taking the center of the stage which Junior had held during his recital of the things he had seen on our trip. "Will you open your eyes, Jan? I guess yes."

"You bet your boots!" Roderick uttered his inevitable expletive.

"Maybe I will, and then again, maybe I won't," Junior retorted with a small boy's perversity. "I'm from Missouri, I am," he swaggered, and I longed to box his ears. He had been such a good boy all day that I wondered, as all mothers must, why he had to spoil things.

"Well, you'll be shown all right," Roderick retorted.

"I said 'maybe,'" Junior persisted.

"And I say cut it out," Dicky struck in. "I can stand just about so much of his village cut-up humor, and I'm getting a bit fed up right now."

Their faces were crimson when he had finished, and Betty's eyes, even wider than usual, went from their faces to Dicky's with a ludicrous look of wondering respect.

ALL ARE INTRIGUED

"When way do we go to find this 'surprise'?" I interposed, knowing from experience that Dicky had finished his strictures and would welcome a diversion. "To the beach?"

I pointed in the direction of the honeymoon cottage, but Mary, who had just arrived with Noel, gave a burlesqued squeal.

"Not out our way," she said. "I wouldn't have that thing anywhere near me for a million dollars."

"You put things so conservatively, darling," her uncle told her, and Mary giggled.

"I don't care," she said stoutly. "I'm just waiting to see Aunt Madge's face and Aunt Katherine's when they lamp that surprise."

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Present national records for the outdoor stick and cabin models will stand regardless of the new weight rule, according to a decision by the national contest board of the Junior Birdmen.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA
(Membership open to all boys and girls 10 to 21)

I wish to join the Junior Birdmen of America. I enclose a dime (well wrapped) for my gold wings and other membership materials.

Print name .....
Street address .....
City ..... State .....
My Age Is Now ..... (Give Your CORRECT Age)

Mail to Junior Birdmen, Boston American Wing, 100 Summer St., Boston, Mass.

This answers numerous questions raised by contestants who will engage in the New England Outdoor Model Flying Tournament Monday, June 28, at Franklin Field, to decide the 1937 champion and winner of the free trip to Atlanta, Ga.

The former models for those two events, while required to weigh not ounce for each 10 square inches of wing area (as the rule now does) did not have to be weighed in without the rubber motors. Therefore they were lighter than the models to be flown this year.

The contest board believes the better-constructed and heavier models this year will find no difficulty in surpassing the present endurance marks.

The national record for hand-launched stick models, under the old conditions, is 22 min. 143 sec., set by Vernon Parker of San Francisco. The best time made with this type by a Boston wing member is 3 min. 10 sec. This record is held by Frank Barrett, Brighton.

Lynn Radcliffe, Syracuse, holds the national R. O. G. cabin record of 15 min. 20 2-5 sec. The Boston record is 2 min. 48 sec., also held by Frank Barrett.

Boys who are out to break the records, Boston or national, should heed the suggestion that they bring more than one model of each type to the Derby. In that way, the loss of one will not curtail their chances.

Other points that all contestants should note include filling entry blanks at once and being sure that their gliders are within specifications and that the other two models are up to weight requirements.

Due to the fact that all contestants are to wear Olympic numbers on their backs and be listed by number in programs for spectators, no entry will be accepted after Monday, June 21. Entries should be filed before that time, as only registered contestants are receiving the valuable bulletins being sent out by Boston headquarters.

There are plenty of glider plans for the asking at Wing headquarters, 100 Summer street, Boston. These are of the glider flown for 89 min. 30 sec. by Joseph Hervat of Milwaukee. Manuals also are free and contain full information on prizes, events and contest procedure. They also contain official entry blanks.

Are rank aspirants must have passed the Eagle test one week before the contest and must place first to fifth in one of three events, all of which they must enter. Eagle tests are available for all boys and girls who have been Birdmen members for three months.

Each contestant is invited to bring his friends and relatives. Adults as well as the young people will enjoy the model plane spectacle and the maneuvers by real airplanes from the E. W. Wiggins hangars, Denison Airport and other operators. The navy and army have been asked to show formation flying. American Air Lines will route all Boston and New York bound transports over the field that day.

There will be music and speeches over the public address system and a thrilling show is guaranteed to all between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Watch for the 13th installment of "Giving the Army Wings," which will appear in next Wednesday's issue of the Boston Evening American in the Junior Birdmen column.

Model building contestants in the championship match will be interested in an illustration in the Junior Birdmen page of Comerford's Boston Sunday Advertiser. It explains Rule F concerning measurement of the fuselage and permissible construction of a rear opening for the tail plug. The diagram shows what is and what is not permitted and will help model builders who have been confused on this point.

* * *

Glider stick and R. O. G. cabin events of a contest to be staged tomorrow at Clark Field, West Hanover, will serve as a rehearsal to the Boston wing contest on June 28 for the John Shobe Memorial squadron of Everett.

The members, of whom David Adelstone is leader, will be the guests of Lieutenant John Griffin and will take airplane flights, cost of which will be defrayed by treasury funds.

Nathan Bronski, sponsor of the unit and associate wing director, will accompany the boys and time the model plane flights.

Miss Ann Culkin, 112 Marine road, South Boston, admires the Boston American wing trophy which will be awarded to the New England champion who is named in the annual outdoor model flying tournament for Junior Birdmen at Franklin Field Monday, June 28.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

Never mind the so-called big-shots of broadcastingdom, we have a strictly local loudspeaker item of more than passing interest. Tom Hussey, one of the best "mike" men in all air activity, becomes a bridegroom today.

Tom is taking unto himself a wife, Margaret Hutchinson, of Marblehead, is the lucky girl. Tom is of course the lucky lad.

Not too long ago this column came out with word that New York ether executives were considering a Boston boy for coast to coast employment. Bing all the guessing at this point. Tom was considered two fair figures only he is decently content to earn his way and win it on the air through these thicker Happiness to you, Mr. and Mrs. Hussey.

In due time "N. F. T." Tom just can't miss making the great grade very soon.

FLEETING FLASHES

Dr. Raymond Lee Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoological Park, will tell reptile stories in an interview with Joe Cook on Cook's hour (WNAC) this evening at 8:30. Dr. Ditmars is regarded as the foremost authority on snakes in the United States. He is the author of a number of books on the subject.

Other guests on the Cook program will be George Frame Brown, author and "Thompkins Comers" actor. Three others who have been heard on previous Joe Cook programs are Billy Lynn, comedian from the Broadway show "Three Men on a Horse"; Mario Chamlee, Metropolitan Opera tenor, and Rufe Davis, Broadway comedian. Chamlee plans to sing operatic arias and will do his "Tony" act with Brown. Davis will do a special "country boy" sketch.

Tschaikowsky, Puccini and Jerome Kern are the composers from which Grace Moore has selected her radio program pieces (WEEI) tonight between 9 and 9:30.

The famous song, "None But the Lonely Heart," is the Tschaikowsky number which Miss Moore will sing. Others are "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Fine Day," from the Puccini opera, "Mme. Butterfly," and "Whistling Boy" by Jerome Kern.

A very unusual Charles Martin circumstantial evidence case involving Harold Israel of Connecticut, a contested murderer, found innocent by Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings, then a Connecticut prosecuting attorney, will highlight the "Johnny Presents" broadcast (WEEI) tonight from 8:30 to 9 o'clock.

The above dramatization will reveal how Israel, though innocent, became enmeshed in a web of circumstantial evidence which forced him to confess to the murder of Father Hubert Dahne of Bridgeport, when positively identified by three witnesses as being at the scene of the crime.

SNAPPY SETTING

For the first time a regular radio sustaining show will hold the entire network open an extra half hour when the first anniversary program of the "Saturday Night Swing Club" is aired (WEEI) tonight from 12:00 midnight to 1:30 a. m.

The list of guests on this rhythm review of the year has grown so extensive that it proved impossible to get everybody in during the hour's time originally allotted for the broadcast.

Even with an hour and a half to celebrate "swing" there will be very fast pacing to work in such outstanding swingers as the "Casa Loma Band," "the Benny Goodman Quartet," the "Quintette du Hot Club de France," and "Raymond Scott's Quintet," plus "Kay Thompson and her Rhythm Singers," the riotous Runny Berigan band, the guitar team of Kress and McDonough, Duke Ellington and his trio, Leslie Lieber, hot fife player, Reggie Gardner, swing harpist, and Adrian Rollini and his vibraphone trio. Worth staying up to hear.

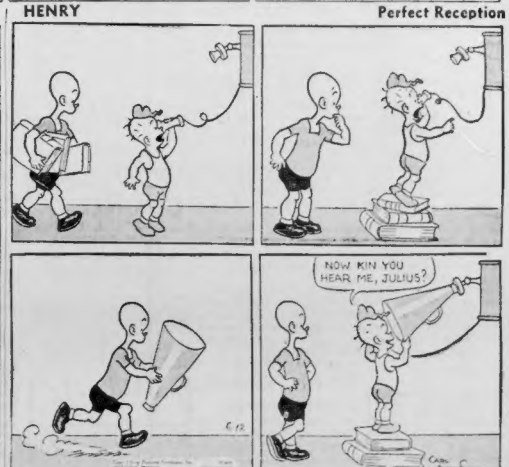
HENRY — Perfect Reception



BOSTON after DARK

GEORGE HOLLAND

Well—sometimes life is like that . . . When something hits your fancy and you like it, you grab hold of it and continue to take it in large doses . . . And the first thing you know it gives you dyspepsia . . . Like last fall, when a Greater Boston lad chortled so often and heartily at a certain Hub theater's current film that the mgr's heart-cockles warmed and he said to himself, like this: "Why, here is certainly a lad of appreciation such as sets off whole audiences into roars and makes good advertising for the theater and one and all. I must give him a life pass no less." . . .

This the grateful mgr. proceeded forthwith to carry out into a deed as a very nice gesture—and the weeks of the new friendship passed into months and rolled on happily, with the lad laughing in the right places . . . Until last Thur. . . . It would be that day that the laughing lad attended the one performance when the tail-end of a flicker got away on the screen first instead of the start . . . So the guy snickered, shifted into a chuckle, chortled and then busted out into hysterics, infecting the entire house . . . The sweating mgr. finally had to ask him kindly to leave . . . But he still has the pass . . .

First Toes of Summer:

Spring and the vernal equinox have officially been filed away for 1937 at the State House . . . Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, a Reverend as well, has appeared in the capitol corridors wearing his summer sandals, with no sox . . . It's his 24th annual appearance in his summer footgear under the dome since he's been a lawmaker . . . And none in the State House will mark spring off and the new season on until he does his first sandal-shuffle for the year . . .

Greater Boston certainly will do well with conventions this summer . . . Largest of them all will be the 10,000 gathering of the Nat'l Ass'n of Retail Grocers at the Statler, June 21-24 . . . Other larger immediate meetings include State Legion Auxiliary, Swampscott, June 17-19 . . . Society for Promotion of Engineering Education, M. I. T. and Harvard, June 28-July 2 . . . Supreme Assembly Order of Rainbow for Girls, Boston, June 26-30 . . .

Dinners at Eight:

The Greater Boston housewives would appreciate an earlier first post time, or more speed in running off the races at Suffolk Downs . . . The late departures of horse players from the track are causing so many delayed dinners that it is possible some of the customers will be carrying dinner pails on their daily outings . . . An earlier post time, at that, might improve the daily handle . . . Swarms of postmen are living after the sixth and seventh races . . .

The 1:30 start at the end of the racing season has not hurt business in the past.

Once Over Lightly:

Bobby Jones of the putters and spoons will live in Westfield this summer . . . He's working for Spalding's, which has a large factory in Chicopee . . . The former champ has taken the mansion of ex-House Speaker Frederick Gillette . . . Incidentally Printer Chet Grenier and Keith's Sam Torgan of Lowell becoming a great golfing combine . . .

No matter what anyone tells you, Gov. Hurley will keep hands off the mayoralty fight, come what may . . . It's a leaf from Sen. Dave Walsh's book against becoming embroiled in inter-party tiffs . . . Is this a tiff? . . . Fred Waring (His Pennsylvanians) all starring with Dick Powell (now Hitchedded) in "Varsity Show" has coined a new one for extras on the Warner Hollywood lot . . . Because of Fred the extras are known there as "stoogents" . . .

Retirement papers of Newton's Judge William F. Bacon will stay on Gov. Hurley's desk now until Sept. . . . It's the new law, effective then, allowing jurists to lay down their gavels at 70 on three-quarters pay . . . And when a new judge is named it'll be a Repub., the governor going on the smart principle that the Dem is predominantly G. O. P. and that he won't lose any friends by keeping it in mind . . .

If the police want to find one lad now on the missing persons books, they can trace him through a dance-gal in the theatrical district . . . He was playing her heavy and they vanished at the same time . . . Probably will turn into a good story . . .

Lake Nipmuc Park summer players (Mendon) get going the 21st with "As Husbands Go" . . . Will follow, the 28th, with "Boy Meets Girl" . . . Louise Galloway directs and performs . . . Dave Nelligan, the Camb. mortician, has five C's in fresh folding money that says John W. Lyons, who lost that town's mayoralty last time out by only 259 votes, will get in this year . . . Nelligan was on Mayor Lynch's bandwagon last time . . .

Col. Dave Egan (who has learned to write) postcards that Agawam (his royal ticket as p. a.) is running 25 p. c. over last year at this stage of the horse meet . . . Senator Eddie Carroll and Judge Miles were guests last night at the 301st Inf. Vets Ass'n. 20th meeting (the Minerva) . . .

Andrew J. Mahony again elected pres. of the Filene Coop. Ass'n . . . In Camrose, Alberta (Our Canadian cousins) you can go to the movies if you go out and shoot some crows . . . A pair of crow's feet counts as 15 cents . . . It's a drive to end the crow menace in the grain country . . .

Hampton Beach's "singing cop," Bill Elliott, known to thousands of summerites, doesn't know whether to be glad or sorry . . . On Major Bowes' program Thur. nite, he was called to the Met here and knocked 'em over at his first show yesterday with four recalls . . . But he's got a leave of absence only until July . . . When he'll have to go back to traffic duty . . .

Film Vividly Portrays History

By PEGGY DOYLE

Although "There Goes My Girl," another newspaper thriller a la Hollywood, is the featured picture at the Keith Memorial this week, it is the British made, "Fire Over England," that is really worth your money and your absorbed attention.

"Fire Over England" recreates for you the days of "Good Queen Bess" and the distinguished English actress, Flora Robson, makes her Elizabeth every inch a queen, who subordinated the woman to the monarch and put her country's welfare before her heart's desire.

It is Miss Robson's opinion—arrived at after 18 months of delving into Elizabethan lore before she took the role—that although she may not have altogether deserved the title, "Good Queen Bess," Elizabeth was most certainly a woman of action, a skilful diplomat, whose energy and zeal for the welfare of her country made her reign immortal.

* * *

Under the spell of Miss Robson's performance, we see Elizabeth in the autumn of her life, looking askance at the love of Cynthia, her lady-in-waiting, and handsome Michael Ingelby, who risks his life for his queen, and then surprisingly taking the weeping Cynthia to her arms, when Michael's safety is menaced.

* * *

She is by turns forbidding, majestic, dominating, provocative, cruel and tender and she is never more the woman than when, glancing in her disillusioning looking-glass after being confronted with the arresting, youthful beauty of Cynthia, she murmurs that from now on there will be no more mirrors in the palace or, in fact, in her life. Flora Robson's portrait of the deathless queen whose reign marked the real rise of England in prestige and power and became known as the golden age of its history is a full-bodied one. It is one of the finest screen portrayals ever given.

Matching it in young Laurence Olivier's Michael Ingelby, the leitmotif of whose life is to serve his queen and to avenge the death of his father, burned by the Spanish inquisition.

Highpoint in drama is the routing of the Spanish Armada by Elizabeth's seven floating fireships manned by volunteer human torches.

Alexander Korda presents this splendid screen spectacle, which is based on the novel by A. E. W. Mason. Erich Pommer produced it, and William K. Howard, one of Hollywood's better directors, directed. The production has been beautifully mounted with the aid of Lazare Meerson and costumes by Rene Hubert.

Second to Miss Robson and Olivier were the notable performances given by Vivian Leigh, as Cynthia; Leslie Banks, as Leicester, the queen's most loyal and loving servitor; Morton Selten, as the aged and ripened Burleigh; Tamara Desni, as the Spanish girl; Raymond Massey, as King Philip.

Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond are the warring, loving rival reporters in "There Goes My Girl," like "Behind the Headlines," another inside newspaper story out of Hollywood that any run-of-the-mill newspaperman will tell you is largely film fiction.

However, it is tolerably amusing and, on that score, probably thoroughly acceptable to the fans. In the first hundred years in the business, this erstwhile reporter has yet to encounter a city editor even vaguely resembling Miss Sothern's city editor who dismissed short only of murder and mayhem in his mania to shatter her romance with Gene Raymond. She was that valuable an addition to his staff. And her wage certainly must have been worthy of her reportorial skill, for her wardrobe, even on the grubbiest of assignments, was on a par with that of the Duchess of Windsor.

RKO Buys Film Rights To 'Room Service'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, June 12—The pleasant little sum of $255,000 is the price rumored paid by RKO for "Room Service," the current comedy hit of the New York stage. One of the other companies was bidding for the play but Leo Spitz, head of RKO, stepped in and offered $5000 more.

* * *

I believe it is the biggest price ever paid for motion picture rights. Harry Cohn handed out $200,000 for "You Can't Take It With You," and the whole town buzzed with excitement.

"Room Service" is one of the Warner Brothers financed stage successes and was produced by George Abbott, who built in "Boy Meets Girl" and "Three Men on a Horse" fame. Warners got half of the price, a phase price, so naturally they are not crying over losing the film rights to this bright, hilarious comedy. George Abbott, the producer, is slated to do two pictures on the Warner lot, and it wouldn't surprise me if he were loaned to RKO. Jack Oakie is the only actor mentioned so far for the part.

P. G. Wodehouse, author of "Damsel in Distress," is back in town to write the adaptation for Fred Astaire, and whom do you think RKO is trying to borrow to co-star with the nimble-footed dancer? Loretta Young, no less. They want her in return for their courtesy in lending Ann Sothern for "Dangerous" Love at Work."

In "Damsel in Distress," the one Astaire picture without Ginger Rogers, we understand the feminine star does not dance and it is almost a non-musical, featuring light comedy situations more. Well, if you've seen Loretta and Tyrone Power you know there is no one better able to do comedy than the gorgeous Loretta.

* * *

You are going to hear a lot about Sol Lesser's principal productions this coming year. Sol has a bankroll of three million, five hundred thousand dollars to spend and he is going to build himself a new studio. You see he's going into the picture producing business more extensively and besides the Tarzan and Bobbie Breen movies, he'll make other pictures.

* * *

A line or two: Lupe Velez gets her first break in a long time at the RKO Studio as the lead opposite Wheeler and Woolsey in "Kangaroo." Who says vaudeville's a big set never get a chance? Sidney Lanfield was greatly impressed with the way Bob Howard, built in "Boy Meets Girl" and "Three Men on a Horse" fame, Warners got half of the price, a phase price, so naturally they are not crying over losing the film rights to this bright, hilarious comedy. George Abbott, the producer, is slated to do two pictures on the Warner lot, and it wouldn't surprise me if he were loaned to RKO. Jack Oakie is the only actor mentioned so far for the part.

Snapshots of Hollywood

AUDREY SUTHERLAND and ADDISION RANDALL, believe it or not, are romancing again. After being within two days of their marriage they broke their engagement, and last night it was a reunion at a club. BARBARA STANWYCK, radiant, and ROBERT TAYLOR, beaming, rushing to a popular night spot to dine with the ZEPPO MARXES after BOB stepped off the boat. He spent exactly one day and a half in Honolulu, the shortest vacation on record.

JOHN BARRYMORE, all by his lonesome, trying to get ELAINE BARRIE on the long distance phone. Wonder if JOHN is still carrying the torch for her? CHARLES BUTTERWORTH and HAZEL FORBES are continuing to be a twosome. FRED STONE asking the dentist to let him see the "crushed" ankle he's going to have for teeth trouble. CHARLIE ROGERS and many of the players and executives of Universal on their way to New York for "The Road Back" opening. That's all for today. See you Monday.

Boston Film Laurels to Tracy

The not-too-consistent newspaper story, "Behind the Headlines," which the RKO-Boston is featuring this week, owes whatever strength it possesses to the excellent characterization given by Lee Tracy as the ace reporter.

Most glaring inconsistency in this RKO-Radio release is the conduct of the newspapermen at an important press conference in the beginning of the picture. Believe it or not, journeymen reporters of the local press, these Hollywood "reporters" never ask a single question throughout the conference.

Another incongruity is the pretty picture of the paper's girl reporter driving to her daredevil assignments in a costly car. The girl reporter is pretty Diana Gibson, and she certainly rates an expensive job on wheels, but hardly this one, Mister Rosson, and on her salary.

However, she's a swell reporter who's in love with Tracy even though she fights him professionally. Tracy is an ex-reporter turned roving "newsseaker" for the radio. By means of two kinds of small portable transmitters, he and an assistant endeavor to beat the metropolitan newspapers on important events by sending out news flashes from the cockpit of a speeding airplane or the control room of a diving submarine.

One of these scooped reporters is the enchanting Diana, who is as talented as she is beautiful in this one. Philip Huston, as the millionaire newspaper publisher, gives an effective portrayal, as does Donald Meek as the crooked Federal man. As Tracy's assistant, Tom Kennedy contributes some comic moments. However, "Behind the Headlines," such as it is, is Tracy's picture. This fast-talking lad with the certain comedy sense, despite the weak spots, pulls the plot together and lifts the picture up to a fairly entertaining status.

"Elephant Boy," the companion picture, was made in England by Zoltan Korda and Robert Flaherty and is a film version of one of Rudyard Kipling's famous jungle stories. The picture's star is a young East Indian Sabu, who has become a studio pet since the picture's release.

MR. BOSTON

Dean and Fette, Wood and Johnson | Delaney Misses $1250 Parlay

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston

The Cardinals will be the favorites . . . Diz, like Babe Ruth, stands up in the pinches . . . Dean warmed up for the Sunday clash by taking Bob Nelson's tips to play Limit and Takus at Suffolk Downs . . . Bob is a Boston Evening American photographer, and when he gave Dizzy two winners the latter broke a rule about posing for pictures at a race track.

The higher ups in baseball used to frown on ball players attending the races, but now don't offer any objections when the diamond heroes journey to the track on days off . . . Ruth once went for 10 grand during a race meeting at Havana, Cuba . . . The Babe was the bookmaker's friend until Christy Walsh and Ed Barrow convinced him that the surest way to accumulate riches was by having a trust fund . . . Incidentally, Ruth is getting $26,000 from his present radio contract . . .

ENOUGH FOR A FEW SHOW PARLAYS

SPEAKING OF show parlays, Bill Delaney of the Stevens [illegible] parks and Revere dog track missed out on a twelve horse show parlay the other day . . . Eleven horses clicked . . . Bill then made a few speeches when the twelfth horse ran [illegible] . . . The parlay would have been worth $1250 [illegible] . . . Over the salad and coffee at a Newspaper Row [illegible] . . . Bill told me he plays a show parlay every day, and always [illegible] eight to a dozen horses running for him . . . He once won [illegible] $2000 limit.

JACK DONOVAN'S SOCKS

JACK DONOVAN had on white inner socks, which is why Harvard protested when Dartmouth's 120-yard hurdle champion was put in as a pinch runner for Ted Bruce of the Big Green team . . . College rules call for regulation socks and other equipment . . . Nobody, however, protested the fact Donovan had a black cap rather than the regulation type worn by other Dartmouth players . . . College baseball is very loosely played nowadays . . . There are numerous sand lot clubs which could beat the best of the college teams.

Paul Waner of the Pirates is the top golfer in baseball now that Sam Byrd, formerly with the Yankees and Reds, has accepted a job as a golf pro at Ed Dudley's course in Philadelphia . . . Freddy Corcoran is picking a "dark horse" to win the final at Detroit today . . . The defeat of Leo Martin, defending champion, in the qualifying round of The Country Club tourney was a surprise . . . Martin was defeated by one up by Clark Hodder in the final of the state championship a year ago . . . He was expected to star at The Country Club . . . One must get the breaks in golf as in other sports.

[illegible] with the caddies who wish to be paid according to the [illegible] of the bags they are obliged to carry . . . Many golfers [illegible] have 15 clubs six woods a sweater and an umbrella in their [illegible] bags . . . And they expect a youngster to carry such a heavy [illegible] for a dollar . . . It isn't fair on the boys . . . Elmer Foote says [illegible] he needs only four clubs for a match . . . In Florida, Elmer had a [illegible] who was 94 years old . . . The Rip Van Winkle of the caddies never is tempted to caddy for any of the top golfers who carry heavy equipment.

AL McCOY BETTING CHOICE

THE BOYS WHO make the betting prices are backing Al McCoy, New England heavyweight champion, to win over Natie Brown of Washington in their ten-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at Fenway Park on Monday night . . . McCoy has been training for three weeks, and is set to travel at top speed . . . Frankie Connelly tells me he would like to get a crack at McCoy . . . A bout between McCoy and Jack Doyle, Irish heavyweight on his way back to the United States, would prove a banner attraction for Boston . . . Doyle recently defeated "King" Levinsky in London.

[illegible] and Ed Don George will head the wrestling carni[illegible] Cross-up-Pyshon Post at Fenway Park . . . George has [illegible] his old time form in his two Boston matches since he returned to the United States following his world's tour . . . Johnny Donovan, trainer of Bill Gallagher's racing stable, is very much burned up over the fact he lost Moralist in a claiming race . . . Moralist has been with the Gallagher Stable for years . . . He is a veteran campaigner and in the words of Donovan "is an honest horse."

Earldom, whose entry will be refused at Suffolk Downs in the future as a result of his post showing, once sold for $12,000 . . . Earl Sande tried to school Earldom at the barrier, but was unsuccessful and gave the thoroughbred away . . . The fastest race horse in the world couldn't get anywhere if unable to break properly . . . Jim Munroe says the 1200 stalls at Rockingham Park will not be sufficient to care for the thoroughbreds which will be shipped to Salem, N. H., for the race meeting that opens on June 21.

Walter O Hara and Mrs. O Hara are on a vacation trip in the West . . . The horses of the Arano Stable are being rested up at Narragansett Park . . . New Deal and Mucho Gusto have done [illegible] this year . . . They won purses in Maryland, at Narragansett Park and at Suffolk Downs other officers, equally available for track duty, never fine themselves on the extra money list.

Timilty was particularly incensed by this alleged situation, because of the fact that he, himself, assigned several of the city's best plain clothes men to the East Boston station.

It was his plan that they should be so used as to give maximum protection to the more than 3,000,000 persons who will have visited Suffolk Downs before the end of the present racing season.

If, as has been reported, there has been "Beacon Hill pressure" exerted to keep his picked sleuths where they couldn't interfere with organized law-breaking at the track, Commissioner Timilty is determined to find out about it, he said.

REDUCED TAKE

Figures the commissioner had in his possession today indicated the extent to which betting money, of which the state should have a share, had been diverted from the pari-mutuel windows at Suffolk Downs.

The total pari-mutuel "handle," Thursday, June 3, was $302,625. That was before the police drive again the chiselling bookmakers.

On Thursday, June 10, the "handle" at Suffolk soared to $354,713, a gain of more than $52,000. That was just 24 hours after the illegal bet-takers were chased out.

HANDLE SOARS

On June 4, $298,030 went through the pari-mutuel windows. Yesterday, the "handle" was $332,900, an improvement of more than $34,000, although both Fridays produced bad weather and comparatively small crowds.

Bookies, ostensibly paying tote-board odds, apparently had been pocketing a minimmum of ten per cent of $30,000 daily—or $3000.

Commissioner Timilty made it clear today that he is reiving on two factors for a permanent clean-up at Suffolk Downs.

Factor No. 2 is the commissioner's move to eliminate "politics" in assignment of officers to race track duty as members of the paid detail.

"We can drive these chiselers out and keep them out, and we will do it, at any cost," Timilty declared.

Brooklyn Scouts Studies Coast Star

Ted McGrew, Brooklyn scout, is said to be giving the Double-O to Art Garibaldi, Sacramento third baseman, of the Pacific Coast League, who has raised his average more than 70 points during a two-week batting spree. Garibaldi went up to the St. Louis Cardinals last year, but was returned.

Relief Threatens Mark As He Wins At Springfield

West Springfield, June 12—Relief, leading winner of the opening meeting of the meet in the Crescent Kennel Club two years ago, rushed his way back into the greyhound racing spot light here by winning the main dash event of Friday night's card and coming within a fifth of a second of tying the track record for the distance.

The Farm runner from Zene Freeman's Kennels helped write racing history when the sport was introduced in Massachusetts two years ago by taking top win honors for the season.

It was the second start of this season for Relief. Rated a close third choice in the betting, the Freeman Entry flashed out of the starting box early, took a commanding lead and then in the run down the home stretch lengthened it to win the event by four lengths.

Lucerne Tom, Bergmann entry, unleashed a stretch drive that brought him into place money, but couldn't cut down the lead of the winner.

Ed Kennedy, from the Haughn Kennels, scored his second victory within a week in the eighth race, a five-sixteenths event.

Many Enter In Hearst Tennis

Athletes of former years, civic leaders and tennis fans joined together in lauding the Hearst tennis tournament that gets under way the week of June 20 at the Harvard clay courts in Cambridge.

Men who have passed the competitive age but still keep up with athletic advancements are lending a helping hand to make this gigantic undertaking one of the most successful tournaments in the east.

Today Joe McKenney, one of the greatest athletes turned out in New England and former captain and coach of Boston College, joined the throng of boosters for this great undertaking.

McKenney is at present head of the Boston Schoolboy Association and has encouraged the thousands of boys and girls of the Boston public schools to sign up for the affair.

McKenney says:

"The Hearst tourney deserves all the support it can get. Anything I can do to influence Boston players to enter the competition will be gladly done. Tennis is a great and beneficial game it's a game which young and old can play on a common plane. I hope it becomes an annual fixture."

OPEN TO ALL

Commissioner Long can ever be relied upon to support any major movement tending towards bigger and better sports. Here's one real strong friend to sports lovers.

Long says,

"The Hearst championship movement has my full sympathy and backing.

"It carries out my own ideas of sport, to throw open such competitions to the many underprivileged players, instead of catering to the few outstanding stars."

Never in all tennis history has the response from players, from real tennis fans, rivalled that in this New England Hearst play.

There are no entry fees, no court costs.

ENTRIES CLOSE JUNE 20

The only requirement is that players provide their own tennis balls during the preliminary matches at Harvard. The committee will provide new tennis balls for the semi-finals and finals, as well as for the eastern sectional championships at New York and the Grand National finals at Los Angeles.

But time is definitely running out. Only eight more days remain for the filing of entries.

The last closes on Sunday, June 20, at midnight. Only those entries postmarked no later than midnight of June 20 will be accepted.

The draw for opening round matches will be printed exclusively in the Boston Evening American the week of June 20, just as soon as the committee can line up the tremendous pairings.

As far as possible play will be held throughout in the afternoon to accommodate those employed.

Men's singles open on Saturday afternoon, June 26, women's singles on Sunday afternoon, June 27, and men's doubles on Monday afternoon, June 28.

FILE BLANK TODAY

Every blank received in date at these offices has been duly accepted by the committee headed by Mrs. George W. Wightman and Davis S. Niles of Longwood.

We want to see you, tennis fans, in this tourney. Please don't be fearful of your ability. The matches will provide a world of enjoyment, something to talk over for many months to come.

So file your entry blank TODAY. The blank appears on this page daily.

Ties Three Others for Top Spot

By WARREN BROWN

Birmingham, Mich., June 12 (US)—New actors, but not much change in the stage craft characterized the action as the National Open Golf championship finished its second round over the Oakland Hills course.

There was still a tie for the lead. But instead of two enjoying that distinction as of Thursday, there were four.

The last one to make it along about 7 o'clock in the evening Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa. was far and away the most sensational as he bested his way up to a place beside Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, Frank Walsh and Ralph Guldahl, both of Chicago, whose two round totals of 140, posted earlier in the day, established the lead.

To get into the four way tie, Thomson had to come from far off the pace that was set for him in the opening round.

And he not only was [illegible] as he [illegible] in the first round of the [illegible] opening round, but for a while until he scored a couple of the short seventeenth, he had a tremendous gallery and an entire battalion of press genie fully expecting that when he finished he would be in the lead, and with company.

Thomson didn't quite make that as birdies and eagles dropped into his records, but he did climax a [illegible] of golfing thrills the like of which few open championships, even in the gladsome days of Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen, ever supplied [illegible] an eager [illegible].

First to crash through with the 140 totals were Dudley and Walsh playing [illegible].

Playing together, in more [illegible] than one, for this brother act duplicated its previous [illegible] ing of 70s to gain for a while a two stroke lead over all those who had finished.

This score dislodged from [illegible] and the [illegible] who [illegible] Snead who had [illegible] and was satisfied with a [illegible] 142 total.

It also [illegible] another [illegible] effort by the Brooklyn [illegible] Frank Strafaci, who returned to shouldered very far out of the [illegible] tinguished company [illegible] did not do much good with

This is his first [illegible] professional ball.

WILSON OUT WITH FAIR KNIGHTESS

CHOICE In Bostonian 'CAP

LADY HIGLOSS SWEET, TOO

By DAVE WILSON
Selections for Fast Track

BEST BET—FAIR KNIGHTESS, FIFTH RACE

Suffolk Downs, June 12—Two $2500 added handicaps, the Plymouth Rock, six furlongs dash for three-year-olds and upwards, and the Bostonian, mile and one-sixteenth test exclusively for fillies and mares, headline an attractive week-end bill here today.

[illegible] Tuesday's [illegible] in the Suburban handicap at the Jerome Downs Hand-up, as selected to reverse the tables on The Fighter in the Plymouth Rock, with Fair Knightess, which was beaten the narrowest of margins in her seasonal debut, ruling a heavy overnight favorite in the Bostonian, and my one best bet

FIRST RACE—Sis Royal, Chatuge, Miss Trophy

SIS ROYAL, a St. Henry filly, strikes me as the "good thing" in this wide open number. This filly forced a dizzy early pace for a bit over five furlongs in her last race and then passed a tiring field among the also rans. CHATUGA of no top some should outwin MISS TROPHY in the play. The latter is a good [illegible] from the gate but she usually stops faster than she can [illegible]

SECOND—Stone Martin, Any Chance, St. Moritz

STONE MARTIN seemed to [illegible] strange Times in last race, needs only to duplicate that good effort to insure success. ANY CHANCE, which finished third to Copper Tube and High Diver the other day, figures cross class that appears to be strictly a two horse race. ST. MORITZ, a sprint winner last trip, figures to [illegible] long enough to head the balance of the field

THIRD—Huskie Boy, Paragon stable entry, Don Lopez

HUSKIE BOY, generally regarded as the fleetest juvenile in New England, needs only to duplicate [illegible] trials to insure himself a Five-eighths in 1:00[illegible] and as a final conviction. BOLD TURK and FAMILY FRIEND, which will run coupled as the Paragon stable entry, should prove difficult to head for the place award, with the lightly-weighted DON LOPEZ nailing up [illegible]

FOURTH—Lady Higloss, The Fighter, Bill Farnsworth

LADY HIGLOSS [illegible] work [illegible] pounds the [illegible] but did [illegible] a [illegible] of the John Hancock. With [illegible] the Lady [illegible] should [illegible] the [illegible] on THE FIGHTER. The latter doubled the top selection a short length in the above mentioned race. He picks up four additional pounds. BILL FARNSWORTH with an eight pounds shift in the weights favorably figures to turn in a vastly improved performance. Bill was the setting choice in the John Hancock

FIFTH—Fair Knightess, Peggy Porter, Tabitha

FAIR KNIGHTESS was nosed out by Tabitha in her seasonal debut through lack of early condition. This The Bright Knight filly has worked a mile in 1:43 very handily since then and will be coming up fit as fiddle and can make her PEGGY PORTER, prize winner of the Priscilla Alden, has been a mile in 1:43 breezing for this test. TABITHA scored a hockey victory in the above mentioned race

SIXTH—Singers Folly, Up and Up, Trouper

SEVENTH—Ridgeonor, Buster Boy, Royal Blunder

RIDGEMOOR, well tutored in sprint races, should find the mile route right to measure. The Morven gelding is strictly the class of the party. BUSTER BOY, second to Likewise in last race, looms as over the main danger. ROYAL BLUNDER hails from a betting stable and may be heaps better than rated

EIGHTH RACE

The Singer, Baby Sweep, Songstone

THE SINGER, second to Lone Hand in his last two outings should be along in time to [illegible] able opposition in this number. BABY SWEEP is [illegible] the party and pro [illegible] that the top one [illegible] She placed to Count [illegible] her last SONGSTONE stepped over from Agawam for the race. He galloped to weaker opposition in his lone effort at the upstate track,

Pilgrim, favorite of the Taunton fans, is again racing at top form and not only looms as the winner of the ninth race feature tonight, but also shapes up as the best bet on the card.

Strafaci Is Repaying Family

Strafaci, 21-year-old youth from Brooklyn, playing in his first national open golf championship, is low scoring amateur as golf's most grueling test swung into today's 36-hole final battle.

Competing with greater campaigners in the game, he doesn't figure to win—but regardless of his finish he thinks he already has justified the faith his family has placed in his ability.

It wasn't long ago that a matter of telling Frankie to play golf and men winning him luck, for the Strafaci clan members have backed their hopes for Frankie with cold cash—cash to play golf as much as he wished while they work; cash to make a winter golf-practice trip to Florida; cash to come to his first national open.

"I have four brothers—Dominic, Ralph, Patsy and Tommy—who play in the 70's," the dark-haired good-looking youngster said as he surveyed the other scores about and below his snappy 36-hole card of 142.

SENT TO FLORIDA

"Any of them probably could beat me if they practiced But they told me 'go ahead and play.' you're the best bet and we think you can go some place.'

"So they all chipped in and I went to Florida last winter, practicing every day. They sent me spending money, too, and the good clubs. My folks—my dad is sort of retired from the grocery business—give me money every time I want to enter a tournament. I only hope I can make good."

A great many veteran shot makers think he will. Strafaci's figure sails the 133-pound Italian youngster the coming national champion. He already has the courage and heart necessary to be a champion. He captured the national public links title in 1935 at Indianapolis, coming in with such bad blisters on his feet that fellow competitors marveled that he could even walk

Lou Ambers Hurt Duke Fit Again

New York, June 12 (INS)—With the bandages removed from his hand, injured in defense of his title Saturday night, Lambchopped, Lou Ambers, lightweight champion of the world, said today he would be ready to start training in a week or ten days.

"I intend to fight as often as possible this summer," Ambers declared, "and nobody will be barred. Tony Canzoneri, Henry Armstrong, Pedro Montanez, Jimmy McLarnin or Barney Ross."

Max Baer Anxious To Meet Pastor

New York, June 12 (INS)—In reply to a query from Max Baer in London, Madison Square Garden today said him an offer to meet Bob Pastor here on July 16, 22 or 30

Baer informed Jimmy Johnston, Garden matchmaker he was now making a motion picture in London but said he was eager to return and fulfil his engagement to fight Pastor

NAMES Golden Key BEST

WILSON TALKS ON AGAWAM

By DAVE WILSON
Selections made for fast track

BEST BET—GOLDEN KEY, SECOND RACE

Golden Key, beaten by Paddy's Sister and Big Play respectively in his last two essays to the post, meets much cheaper contention today at Agawam. And, if alertly ridden, he should lead this band across the wire. Must rate him the most solid betting proposition on the day's card.

FIRST—Joe D, Balance Up, Stenographer

JOE D won in the face of adverse racing luck last outing, and if he gets a fair shake in racing fortune should prove the tables on BALANCE UP. The latter won her last and should hold the rest of the field safe. STENOGRAPHER can better her last two efforts.

SECOND—Golden Key, Judge Peak, Tambov

JUDGE PEAK, on general local form, shapes up as GOLDEN KEY'S main opposition. The former needs only to retain his present keen edge to hold secondary honors safe. TAMBOV and MORLUTZ for what is left.

THIRD—Moonburn, Elizabeth Farley, Flaming Belle

MOONBURN has a race back of MAY MUSIC at the local oval that if repeated should find her earning her initial set of tickets. ELIZABETH FARLEY, a recent arrival here, shapes up as her main rival. FLAMING BELLE needs only to run her race to earn the minor award

FOURTH—Flying Mercury, Precieus, Titanical

Shooting for a prize and expect to get it with FLYING MERCURY, a fresh trial has a very good trip last outing. Drops eight pounds off that effort and may reward his backers with a fair price. PRECIEUS should be in front as far as he goes. TITANICAL can better his last.

FIFTH—Bold General, Heartease, Pretty Lass

If he breaks with customary alertness BOLD GENERAL figures to take command at once and make every pole a winning one. HEARTEASE and PRETTY LASS, breaker, may find the route a bit too fast, but should hold her speed long enough to snare the place award. PRETTY LASS on general local form rates close up.

SIXTH—Upside Down, Fatsey Begone, Lost Friend

UPSIDE DOWN raced as if shy of condition in his last. With that race under his belt he figures to improve enough to head this field safe. FATSEY BEGONE, a greatly improved putter, shapes up as the main danger. LOST FRIEND'S last was a beaut, and the top two can ill afford to make any mistakes

SEVENTH—Pencador, Sazopal, Infilee

PENCADOR should find conditions suitable enough for him to win his first purse of the current meeting in this event. SAZOPAL and INFILEE should finish in the order named, while Union and Highest Point must be accorded chances in the wide open affair

EIGHTH—Revonah, Foreign Legion, Apathy

Despite being top weight of the party, REVONAH shapes up as the most likely winner of the final. FOREIGN LEGION, third in his last two, shapes up as the top threat to beat him. APATHY and BRUSH PAST figure close for the show award

Why Shy needs only to repeat last out against the same class of greyhounds to again return a winner at Wonderland Park tonight. The "pup" shapes up as the best bet on the card.

The eighth race feature will be run over the Derby course, which is 675 yards, and will be the longest race held this year

Chief Justice, who is at top form, should hang on long enough to Win. Ann Faith, who is a router, may find the distance to her liking and upset the top choice

LYNN ENGLISH SURPRISE OF BASEBALL TOURNEY

MEETS Lowell for CROWN

TEAMS CLASH AT FENWAY

Lynn English and Lowell high meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Fenway Park in the finals for the schoolboy championship of Eastern Massachusetts.

English qualified only after a gruelling semi-final game with Watertown which lasted 14 innings—the longest schoolboy tournament play-off game since the plaque was started. The score of that contest was 4 to 3

Lowell high easily disposed of Ha[illegible] in the other part of the [illegible] by the score 12 to 2.

Before the tournament Coach Tom Whelan of English outfit wasn't even a one or at the title. It was expected that Medford would win. But the Lynn outfit surprised by beating the Medfordites a 3 to 1 [illegible]

LOWELL'S THIRD FINAL

The North Shore boys continued their sparkling [illegible] against Watertown handing Frank McHugh and Watertown their first defeat of the current season.

This afternoon's game should be an interesting contest. It has all the earmarks of one.

It will be Lowell's third attempt to annex the Eastern crown. In 1933 it was defeated 20 to 8 in the finals by Somerville, and the same fate occurred in the '36 play-offs. Reaching the finals Coach Hank DePaya boys encountered Somerville again. And again the Lowell troupe were defeated. Only the score resembled yours like a base ball game—being 9 to 8.

Ray Reason, who hurled the opening win over Medford, will be Coach Tom Whelan's selection. Reason has been twirling beautiful ball for Lynn this season. He won seven of the eight Essex League games which gave his team the crown.

THEY CAN HIT

He will also have the help of big Jim Hegan, outstanding batter and leading the team with .436. Sammy Parkinson, who will be at short, and Angelo Nickolakis, the second-sacker, should also produce some timely wallops.

Lowell will have Eastman, slugging first baseman, and Ryan, the third sacker. Against Milford, Eastman collected four for four and Ryan got three out of five.

The winners of today will meet the best the West has to offer next week-end and they will battle it out for the state championship. The game will be played at the Bee [illegible]

If McCoy can kayo Brown, who went 10 rounds with Joe Louis, he'll hurtle close to the top of the heavyweight pack.

"I'll win by a kayo within five rounds," said McCoy today

Brown lets his shrewd pilot, Billy McCarney, do all the talking for him, and McCarney has plenty to [illegible]

Briefly, it is:

"McCoy has several major weaknesses which I've spotted. Brown has been trained to take advantage of them. He can't miss. In fact he may win by a knockout."

GOULD 'MADE' BRADDOCK

Pilot's Shrewd Handling Brings Fame, Riches

This is the seventh of twelve special articles which present a complete and authentic picture of America's true miracle man of the ring. The author will soon describe the most important event, perhaps, in Braddock's ring career: Jim's meeting with Joe Gould:

By HUGH FULLERTON

Turning points in a man's life come unexpectedly.

Jim Braddock, careless, satisfied to drift along and have a good time while earning day wages by fighting a few rounds a week, had no thought of any crisis in his life when, one afternoon in 1928 he swaggered into Joe Jeanette's gymnasium in Union City, N. J.

Jeanette a veteran colored heavyweight star, was a good teacher. He liked Braddock and believed if the boy would work and take boxing seriously, he had a fine future.

Joe sought to show the youngster some of the real tricks of the trade. He also tried to get matches for him that would attract notice, but without much success.

There was no longer much if any, demand for Braddock as a ring attraction.

Gene Tunney was coming into the limelight, and half a dozen other youngsters were being groomed as future champions. No club seemed to want to use Braddock including, to be sure, though he was willing to fight without much [illegible]

LICKS GYM CHAMPION

The star at Jeanette's gym was a boy named Hart [illegible] was supposed to be a champ.

His manager was a dapper little fellow called Joe Gould who had hoped when younger and was now holding a couple of fighters around the clubs.

Gould was planning to sell his contract to manage Galfund in some Jersey City men a [illegible] had asked $3500.

The purchase [illegible] to see Galfund in action before [illegible] the money in hand.

Galfund was ready to box, but no one was there to spar with him. Gould sized up Braddock and asked: "Want to make five dollars?"

Braddock said he was willing to fight Dempsey for $5.

"Box a few rounds with my boy," Gould ordered.

Braddock leaped into the ring and commenced to jab Galfund with his left, force the fight and, forgetting restraint, he cut loose his right and knocked Galfund down.

Braddock outboxed and outhit him for three rounds and Gould was desperate at seeing his protege wrecked by a novice.

However, Gould sold the Galfund contract for $1250—instead of $3500 and handed Braddock $5.

The result was that Gould, having sold one fighter, and wanting another arranged with Joe Brad dock to take charge of Jim's career.

The only contract was a hand shake, but for ten years Gould has managed Braddock, through good luck and bad, scores and privately, and they never had a contract until the New York State Boxing Commission compelled them to sign one.

STARTS TO TRAIN

The accidental meeting in Jeanette's gymnasium was a most fortunate [illegible] turning point in Braddock's career.

The boxer had found what he needed: someone to manage his affairs and show him where he was going.

Gould began to teach him how to train properly, how to box and work, and was more impressed [illegible] than with his boxing [illegible] Many [illegible] members [illegible] Gould [illegible] Braddock [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

CZECHS
Menace Shoe INDUSTRY

Increasing imports of shoes from Czechoslovakia are becoming a serious menace to New England shoe manufacturing and shoe workers as shown by U. S. government report.

A few years ago the shoe industry was threatening with severe losses through the flow that country made possible to the New United States during 20 per cent, but action taken by the Federal Tariff Commission at the behest of manufacturers resulted in the duty on McKay sewed shoes being increased to 20 per cent which was sufficient at that time to protect the home market.

In the last year or two, however, shoes from Czechoslovakia made with imported soles by a process entirely different from that used in manufacturing McKay shoes, have invaded the American market and this was possible because that type of shoe came in under an ad valorem of 20 per cent. The change in the manufacturing process used by Czecho factories thus has made it possible for shoes made in that country to once again become a serious menace.

PROTEST TO BE MADE

This situation has been carefully watched by the New England Shoe and Leather Association and several weeks ago, when it was announced from Washington that the State Department would soon engage in discussions with representatives of Czechoslovakia for making a reciprocity agreement with that country, [illegible] with the State Department a protest against any change in the existing tariff rate on imported shoes. The Association shortly thereafter filed a request to be heard in protest, and permission to file a brief, against any action by the State Department involving a change in duties on shoes from that country. If and when the State Department gives notice of when hearings will be arranged for discussing a reciprocal duty with Czechoslovakia the Association will present its opposition through a committee of prominent New England shoe manufacturers.

Since that action was initiated the situation has become further aggravated during recent weeks by sales of fall and winter shoes by American agents of factories in Czecho which have caused New England shoe factories a loss of many thousands of cases of shoes, thereby taking from those plants business they had fully expected to obtain and which will ultimately cause a loss of earning power and employment to hundreds of shoe workers.

This situation became so serious that the Association at once acted in behalf of the manufacturers of Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire in appealing to the federal tariff commission at Washington to immediately start an investigation of the difference in cost of manufacture of comparable types of shoes made with cemented soles in Czechoslovakia and in this country, coupled with a request that the duty on imports of such shoes be increased from 20 to 30 per cent, as permitted under the tariff act of 1930.

RESOLUTION URGED

The association, in an interview this week with Senator David I. Walsh, who is a member of the Senate finance commission, which deals with tariff matters, requested him on his return to Washington to introduce a resolution in the Senate urging action at once on the association's request for the federal tariff commission to start its investigation. The association has also communicated with Congressman William J. Connery, who represents that great shoe manufacturing district of Lynn and neighboring towns, of the seriousness of those importations to the factories and workers located in his district and asking his cooperation in behalf of the shoe workers in his district.

In addition the association has been assured of the support of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, while the United Shoe and Leather Workers' Union has already made its protest against any reciprocal favors involving shoes and urging an increase in duty on shoes now coming into this country.

The principal reason this matter is of vital importance to the industry in New England is because a very substantial percentage of women's shoes made here are the types of shoes now being imported from Czechoslovakia. The seriousness of the situation to New England factories was emphasized only a few weeks ago when the American representative of one firm in Czechoslovakia circularized American shoe buyers for orders on a certain stated shoe priced at $1.15 net per pair wholesale delivered freight paid in New York to retail at $2. Typical factories here are on record as stating that this same shoe, with its special features, cannot be produced in this country for less than $1.45 to $1.50 per pair, wholesale.

Haney Discusses Gold Price and The Average Man

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, June 12—(1)—"Will you tell me whether international settlements are made in gold on the basis of $35 an ounce?" (New York)

Ans.—Between the United States and other countries settlements are made on the basis of $35 an ounce of gold. In fact, the chief difference between [illegible] is exactly that. Dollars owed us by foreigners are payable in gold at the rate of 35 dollars to the ounce.

Settlements between other nations are made in terms of the dollar. Their currencies, however, [illegible] can be determined at any given time. The rates of exchange among different currencies include the English pound and the American dollar. The pound has a [illegible] value, because England maintains a [illegible] has a fixed gold value in foreign exchange. The [illegible] currencies tend to exchange for one another on the basis of their various gold purchasing powers as [illegible] rates of exchange for dollars or pounds.

* * *

(2)—"How do we know that $35 an ounce is too [illegible] If commodity and security prices were to double would $35 an ounce be too low?"

Ans.—We know that $35 an ounce is too low for the following reasons. First, the amount of gold [illegible] liberately made too small with the [illegible] tionary effect on prices to prevent the [illegible] uitable exports.

Second, the abnormal inflow of gold [illegible] imports of merchandise and silver prices that [illegible] valued in terms of gold. This means that the [illegible] paper dollars is too high. So people from all over the [illegible] gold here in order to get dollars.

It is difficult to say whether [illegible] double, the "price" of gold would be [illegible] of gold has no direct bearing upon our [illegible] level. This is because we are not on the gold standard. The administration can juggle its "price of gold as [illegible] out any direct or necessary effect upon [illegible] commodities.

It is probable, however, that if commodity [illegible] 100 per cent, it would not pay to change [illegible] We can at least say that the dollar would not be [illegible] valued.

(3)—"I beg to suggest that no one is going to stop the forward march of the working man to his rightful place in the sun. The average man has tasted his power and he likes it. His vote is equil to that of even a captain of finance. What can stop his fight for better conditions?" (Brooklyn).

Ans. My observation is that when any person gets the notion that he has a "rightful place in the sun" he is likely to go berserk. He gets the sun in his eyes. Psychiatrists call it "delusions of grandeur."

My answer to the "average man" is that he does not exist. He is an unreal figment of the Communists' imagination. Hardly any two men are equally good as producers. Certainly no two like exactly the same things. If you propose to average things up and treat everybody alike, you will find that nobody is satisfied.

The more skillful men will kick at not getting more than the others. The lazy and inefficient will be disappointed that the average they get is so low. You see nobody would work as hard and with individual savers and enterprisers out of the picture (as they would be, don't forget) there wouldn't be much to divide up, after a while.

Your fundamental mistake is to assume that because men have the same voting power they, therefore, should have the same economic power. It can't work.

More than that, you know that to give a man wealth merely because he has a vote, is just plain dishonesty. It is [illegible] oyed and unfair that no American-minded man would [illegible] for a moment.

We can all sit around and vote paper money [illegible] perhaps use bankers as though it of dollar bills. But when it comes to the stuff we want for food, clothes and shelter going to come from? They come only from the economic functioning of labor, capital and enterprise; and that requires pay for each according to what he does in production.

U. S. Charter for Winter Hill Bank

The Federal charter of the Winter Hill Co-operative Bank became [illegible] effective on Thursday, June 3, 1937 [illegible] under the new title of the Winter Hill Co-operative Federal Savings and Loan Association of Somerville. The bank organized in Massachusetts in 1906 has assets of $6,600,000 and now becomes the largest Federal savings and loan association in Metropolitan Boston. The association remains a local-owned [illegible] and home-financing institution. [illegible] personnel and management will be entirely local, and its business activities confined, as in the past, to the promotion of savings and home-ownership in the region of Metropolitan Boston. Depositors and borrowers will continue to participate in its net earnings. Mortgages [illegible]

OPPOSE TRADE PACT ON CZECH SHOES
Haverhill Committee Asks Cooperation in State
FOR CURB ON CZECH SHOES
Proposed Trade Agreement Called Menace
N. E. Shoe Men Ask High Tariff On Czech Goods

NEW ENGLAND DEMANDS A FAIR DEAL!

WILL the New Deal's determination to favor Czechoslovakia with tariff concessions outweigh the New Deal's obligation to American workers?

This is the question that Haverhill, Lynn and other New England shoe cities ask.

Despite existing tariff barriers, Czechoslovakian manufacturers are flooding American markets with cheaply made shoes.

Because of low wage scales and long hours, they are able to pay transportation and import costs, and still undersell us.

The result is increased unemployment in the United States. Every shoe that a Czechoslovakian manufacturer sells here is a shoe that an American worker does NOT receive wages for making. It is money out of the worker's pay envelope. OFTEN IT MEANS THE LOSS OF HIS JOB.

ONE would think this ought to be of great concern to the State Department in Washington. But such does not seem to be the case.

Though thousands of shoe workers are on relief rolls in New England and elsewhere, Secretary Hull and his aides are considering what they call a reciprocal trade treaty with Czechoslovakia.

And there are strong hints that the tariff on various types of shoes from that country WILL BE REDUCED.

In other words, the United States will pay MORE wages to Czechoslovakian workers while MORE of our own workers join the ranks of the unemployed!

This is an intolerable situation. Shoe tariffs are too low now. Under no circumstances can they be permitted to go lower.

The government in Washington is OUR government, not the Czechoslovakians'. It should serve us, not them.

LET US PROTECT OUR LABOR AND INDUSTRIES AGAINST LOW COST FOREIGN PRODUCTS

Consumer Incomes Improve

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Even though domestic labor troubles are considered a prime cause of recent downtrends in markets and trade it is not possible to entirely absolve foreign happenings of blame. The gold scares may be over, as many believe they are, but the situation in France has once again reached an acute stage. Capital is again fleeing from the franc as uncertainty spreads regarding the government's ability to finance itself through the summer. The balance on hand in the French treasury is said to have declined from the 3600 million francs two months ago to 300 million francs at present.

* * *

If the figures above are accurate, and the financial district considers them so, the French government is up against it. Repercussions may affect the Tri-Partite monetary agreement, which is only a 24 hour affair. Incidentally, while the agreement may be effective insofar as cash transactions in foreign exchange are concerned it has not prevented a wide decline in the discount rate on 90 day francs.

* * *

While stock prices in general turned in a very poor performance at the close of the week the lack of volume and failure to encourage many people to hold on to their commitments. For the most part such an attitude is displayed by those who would ordinarily dump stocks overboard in fairly vigorous fashion. Insofar as this writer is concerned a further tightening of positions that conform to the hypothetical one held here is not necessary. The reason is threefold. First, the group recently favored act better-than-market and second the relative dullness of prices on declines to date suggests the possibility of a false move.

* * *

The cash proportion of accounts should not be used as yet. In the event the low prices noted here yesterday are reached it is entirely possible that certain stocks and several groups will not decline to new lows. These are the groups to keep an eye on and readers will want to have funds to buy them after the test is over.

* * *

Notebook: Right now the groups that appear to have the best chance of pleasing new lows are electrical equipments, metals, farm equipments and motor accessories . . . Building issues also seem to have strengthened their position of late . . . The thing to remember in each spurious rally just as the late stages of an upturn are very scientific as too are the final declines leading to an intermediate base . . . Estimates of Railroad earnings are not as optimistic as expected . . . Per share net is placed at between $3.50 and $3 . . . Eastern American Transportation is expected to show better than $4 per share this year.

CURRENT TOPICS

Attention was given the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board, which disclosed daily average wages in 25 industries during April rose to 68.4 cents an hour from 65.9 cents in March, while the average work week declined from 41.7 hours to 41. Employment was 1.5 per cent ahead of March and 19 per cent higher than in the 1929 period.

Those watching building material stocks studied the figures of the F. W. Dodge Corporation, indicating residential construction contracts in May were 20 per cent above the aggregate for the same 1936 month but considerably under the recovery peak established in April.

Sterling was up a shade at $4.9934 and the French franc was unchanged at 4.45 cents at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions.

Socony-Vacuum to Sell $75,000,000 Debentures

Directors of Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., announce arrangements are being concluded for sale of a issue of $75,000,000 of debentures to five mutual life insurance companies.

The debentures are to mature in 18 years carrying a 3¼ per cent coupon, and are being sold at 98. Insurance companies participating are, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Prudential Insurance Co. of America, New York Life Insurance Co., Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York.

The amount of $75,000,000 is believed to be the largest new financing, exclusive of refunding, undertaken by a private corporation since 1926.

Commenting on the transaction, President Brown of Socony stated: "While the new issue has been sold direct to five mutual insurance companies, the fact that those companies have estimated 60,000,000 policy-holders, not including duplications, indicates the transaction has a widespread public interest.

"The proceeds from the securities will be added to the company's working capital and will be used to meet bank loans and the company's prospective capital requirements over the next three years."

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 12—Variety store and drug sales helped to boost May sales of chain stores 1 per cent over April and 8 per cent above May last year, "chain store age" reported today. Grocery chain sales dropped slightly and, because of the April drop was 6 per cent under the April level.

Reliable Stores Corp., reported today net sales for May of $921,-373, compared with $717,332 in May last year. For the five months sales rose to $3,494,940 from $2,816,800 in the same period of 1936. Directors announced the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents on the 5 per cent convertible preferred stock payable July 1 to stock of record June 22.

Predicting a favorable summer for the automobile industry, Joseph G. Fraser, vice president in charge of sales of Chrysler Corp., stated that the company's business was considerably better than a year ago. He said that dealers orders for new cars were pouring into the factory and that he saw no evidence of a let-up during June and July.

Job Tips Employers buy human services much on the same basis as they buy other commodities—they expect to make a profit on them. They want to get more money. You might be able to do several types of work, but you are undoubtedly fitted for one type better than any other. This is a day of specialization, and you will succeed in a specialized field that is to your liking than being a jack-of-all-trades. Train yourself for one particular line of work, and in so doing, your chances for employment will be greatly increased, as will be your utility to your employer.

Consumer Incomes Improve

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

In the next six months consumer incomes in the New England area are estimated at 19 per cent above last year. Thus the outlook continues just as bright as it has for months. And when it is remembered that the same period last year was one of distinct improvement the prospect of a further gain is heartening.

The figures used here are obtained from the Brookmire Income Map recently published and which also shows that this section once again is expected to match the average improvement forecast for the country as a whole. Connecticut, as it so often has during the whole recovery movement, supplies the bright spot in the New England picture. A gain of 25 per cent is anticipated for the State while Massachusetts is down for an increase of 17 per cent. All in all the impression we received from a careful reading of the Income Map is that the outlook for retailers is encouraging. Accordingly it is suggested readers be on the alert for buying opportunities in a few days.

Even though domestic labor troubles are considered a prime cause of recent slumbers in markets and trade it is not possible to entirely absolve foreign happenings of blame. The gold scares may be over, as many believe they are, but the situation in France has once again reached an acute stage. Capital is again fleeing from the franc as uncertainty spreads regarding the government's ability to finance itself through the summer. The balance on hand in the French treasury is said to have declined from the 2600 million francs two months ago to 300 million francs at present.

* * *

If the figures above are accurate, and the financial district considers them so, the French government is up against it. Repercussions may affect the Tri-Partite monetary agreement, which is only a 24 hour affair. Incidentally while the agreement may be effective insofar as cash transactions in foreign exchange are concerned it has not prevented a wide decline in the discount rate on 90 day francs.

* * *

While stock prices in general turned in a very poor performance at the close of the week the lack of volume selling is encouraging many people to hold on to their commitments. For the most part such an attitude is displayed by those who would ordinarily dump stocks overboard in fairly vigorous fashion. Insofar as this writer is concerned a further tightening of positions that conform to the hypothetical one held here is not necessary. The reason is twofold. First the groups recently favored act better-than-market and second the relative dullness of prices on declines to date suggests the possibility of a bigger move.

* * *

The cash proportion of accounts should not be used as yet. In the event the low prices noted here yesterday are reached it is entirely possible that certain stocks and several groups will not decline to new lows. These are the groups to keep an eye on and readers will want to have funds to buy them, after the test is over.

* * *

Notebook: Right now the group that appears to have the best chance of avoiding new lows are electrical equipments, metals, farm equipments and motor accessories . . . Building stocks also seem to have strengthened their position of late . . . The thing to remember in our opinion is that just as the late stages of an upturn are very selective so too are the final declines leading to an intermediate base . . . Estimates of Pullman's 1937 earnings are not as optimistic as expected . . . Per share is placed at between $2.50 and $3 . . . General American Transportation is expected to show better than $4 per share this year.

STRIKES Again Cloud MARKET

STOCKS OFF, TRADING SLOW

New York, June 12—Steel strike clouds again darkened the stock market horizon today and leading issues dipped fractions to more than 2 points.

The gloom was accentuated by the strike called at Bethlehem's main Cambria plant. At the same time settlement was announced of labor disputes at the Michigan factories of Budd Wheel and Packard Motors.

Dealings were extremely slow from the start, but prices required only a moderate push to give way.

Among new lows for the year were those of Chrysler, General Motors, Vanadium, Boeing, American Can and Electric Power & Light.

Conspicuous losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Inland Steel, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Celanese, Loew's and Lone Star Cement.

Bonds were uneven and most commodities pointed lower.

Business news was a bit spotty, but not especially discouraging.

CURRENT TOPICS

Attention was given the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board, which disclosed daily average wages in 25 industries during April rose to 68.4 cents an hour from 65.9 cents in March, while the average work week declined from 41.7 hours to 41. Employment was 1.5 per cent ahead of March and nine per cent higher than in the 1929 period.

Those watching building material stocks studied the figures of the F. W. Dodge Corporation, indicating residential construction contracts in May were 20 per cent above the aggregate for the same 1936 month, but remained under the recovery peak established in April.

Sterling was up a shade at 84.93¾, and the French franc was unchanged at 4.45 cents at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions.

Socony-Vacuum to Sell $75,000,000 Debentures

Directors of Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., announce arrangements are being concluded for sale of an issue of $75,000,000 of debentures to five mutual life insurance companies.

The debentures are to mature in 18 years carrying a 2¾ per cent coupon, and are being sold at 98. Insurance companies participating are: Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Prudential Insurance Co. of America, New York Life Insurance Co., Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York.

The amount of $75,000,000 is believed to be the largest new financing, exclusive of refunding, undertaken by a private corporation since 1929.

Commenting on the transaction, President Brown of Socony stated:

"While the new issue has been sold direct to five mutual insurance companies, the fact that these companies have as estimated 60,000,000 policy-holders, not including duplications, indicates the transaction has a wide-spread public interest.

"The proceeds from the securities will be added to the company's working capital and will be used to meet bank loans and the company's prospective capital requirements over the next three years."

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 12—Variety, shoe and drug sales, helped to boost May sales of chain stores 1 per cent over April and 8 per cent above May last year, "chain store age" reported today. Grocery chain sales dropped slightly and business of the apparel group was 6 per cent under the April level.

Reliable Stores Corp. reported today net sales for May of $911,-567 compared with $771,382 in May last year. For the five months sales rose to $3,494,340 from $2,816,900 in the same period of 1936. Directors announced the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents on the 5 per cent convertible preferred stock payable July 1 to stock of record June 22.

Predicting a favorable summer for the automobile industry, Joseph W. Frazer, vice-president in charge of sales of Chrysler Corp., stated that the company's business was considerably better than a year ago. He said that dealers orders for new cars were pouring into the factory and that he saw no evidence of a let-up during June and July.

Employment

New Low Employment Rates: 1 day—20c per line. 3 or more days—15c per line.

Job Tips Employers buy human services much on the same basis as they buy other commodities—they expect to make a profit on them. They buy the help they can't do for money. You might be able to do several types of work, but you are undoubtedly fitted for one type better than any other. This is a day of specialization, and you will find competition less bothersome in a specialized field that is by no means limiting than being a jack-of-all-trades. Train yourself for one particular line of work, and in so doing, your chances for employment will be greatly increased, as will be your utility to your employer.

End Kidnapings!

THE kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Parsons, New York society woman, is new proof that America needs laws making the PAYMENT OF RANSOM ILLEGAL.

The PROFIT MOTIVE in kidnaping must be banished.

Kidnapers must be made to realize that there is no hope of their being paid for their crime and that the full force of the law will be upon them IMMEDIATELY.

More than two years ago Senator Ashurst of Arizona proposed a NO RANSOM PAYMENT LAW. He said:

"In countries which make it a crime to pay ransom to kidnapers, kidnaping is almost unknown."

This year Representative John J. Craven of Boston urged a similar law for Massachusetts.

So far, little has been done. Legislators are too busy, apparently, with other matters.

CONSEQUENTLY, KIDNAPING CONTINUES.

The thing for every country and every State to do is: MAKE CRIME FUTILE BY STRIPPING IT OF PROFIT.

Not all crime can be stopped that way.

BUT KIDNAPING FOR RANSOM CAN BE.

Even Stanley Baldwin!

BOSTON and many New England theater-goers are to see Hearst News-reel pictures of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

The films, made at the famous Chateau de Cande wedding, are the first to arrive in this country, and they are being rushed to theaters by airplane.

Edward was never our king, but we are, nonetheless, interested in him and the American woman now his wife.

How different in England, where Edward WAS King!

There the order has gone out to theater managers that the "people wouldn't be interested and the Duke's wedding films ought not to be shown."

No wonder the London Daily Express was prompted to make this sarcastic comment:

"You will have to go to France or America — or maybe Russia — to see them (the films)."

We have doubts about France and Russia, mmm about ourselves.

Mr. Long's Timely Action

PARK COMMISSIONER WILLIAM P. LONG deserves praise.

Acting, he said, in response to the call of his own conscience and to public demand, he has posted two temporary lifeguards at Charlesbank beach.

There, Doris and Elizabeth O'Rourke, 12-year-old twins of Charlestown, were drowned Wednesday, when they went beyond their depth.

"I don't know where I'm going to get the money to pay the guards," Mr. Long explained. "But I'll scrape it up somehow."

He added that before the regular beach patrol begins on Tuesday, he will have all the Charlesbank holes filled with sand.

The death of the little O'Rourke sisters was a terrible tragedy. They cannot be restored to life. But other children can and should be protected.

It is clearly the City Council's duty to support Commissioner Long in his determination to make bathing safe in Boston.

The Apes May Show Us

HARVARD scientists, exploring the seldom-visited mountain forests of northern Siam, search out the gibbon, a man-like ape, and make phonographic recordings of his "language."

Harold J. Coolidge, Jr., expedition leader, reports that gibbons not only "talk," but listen with intelligent attention to the mechanical reproductions of their voices.

He finds that these strange monkeys are extremely social, living together in perfect harmony, each "man" with one "wife." War, he assures us, is practically unknown among them.

If that is true, and we believe Mr. Coolidge, Harvard ought never to lose those gibbon recordings. We blundering humans need them.

Someday, perhaps, we may learn to understand the ape-man's "conversation" and to find in it the secret of peaceful living that we've never been able to discover in the thousands of years that separate us from the jungle.

Helplessly, They Watched

A HEAVILY-LADEN truck crashed into a tree on the Webster-Worcester highway Friday, and the 32-year-old driver, a Fabyan, Ct., farmer, was burned to death.

The reporter who reached the scene a few minutes after the accident tells us:

"The groans and moans of the dying youth could be heard as the flames enveloped the truck. We were helpless. All we could do was watch."

Thus is told the story of a thousand automobile accidents. This driver isn't alive to tell us what happened BEFORE the crash. We know only what happened AFTER.

All of us who drive should try to remember the reporter's dispatch. Its horror should make us cautious.

It Will Be a Rare Treat

TOMORROW'S musical festival, presenting twenty Junior Veteran bands, will be one of the most interesting events of its kind ever conducted in Boston.

Sponsored by this newspaper and the Sunday Advertiser, the concert will be heard by thousands of Boston and New England people at Brandwy Stadium.

The American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, perhaps more than any other two organizations in the country, have encouraged interest in music.

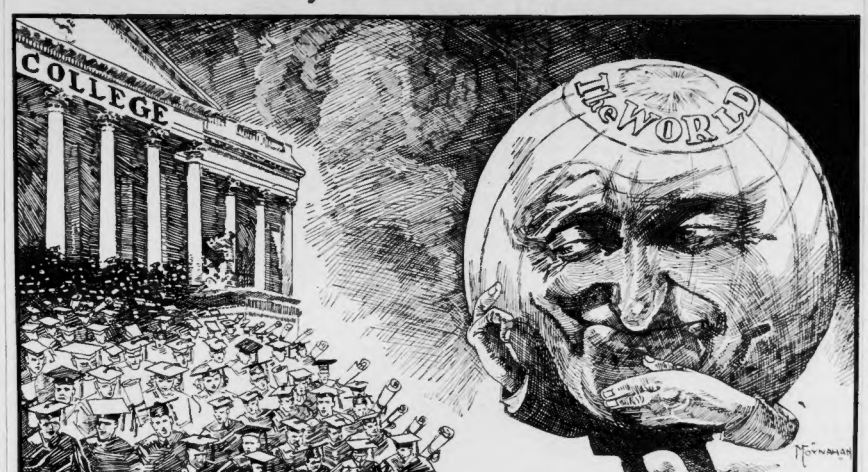
They Face the World



New, Clean and Bright, They Are Bursting Forth as the Leaves That Appear in the Spring.

JUNE graduates will like Mr. John Moynahan's picture. It shows them, and the world that awaits them.

They are presenting themselves to practical Old Mr. World with their various diplomas and degrees, plus hope, enthusiasm and confidence.

New, clean and bright, they are bursting forth as the leaves that appear in the Spring.

Let us hope that, unlike the leaves, they will not be withered and strewn by the Autumn winds of disappointment.

"I drew a smiling world. He isn't such a hard, chilly fellow when you get to know him." That is what Mr. Moynahan told us this morning.

Happy thought, that. Yes, the world smiles—but only on those that deserve smiles. For the others, unfortunately, there are mostly frowns, as they are bound to learn.

Smiles or frowns? The choice rests with the individual. Actually, nobody can win or reap either for him.

Practical Old Mr. World asks everybody the same questions:

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?
WHAT CAN YOU DO?
ARE YOU WILLING TO WORK?

The last is the most important; simple education, even the possession of a degree or a summa cum laude, isn't enough.

Four years of Latin, Greek, mathematics, history, English and one or two foreign languages do not spell SUCCESS INSURANCE, nor OLD AGE PENSION.

Such learning broadens the mind, trains the powers of concentration, and—what matters most—shows WHAT OTHERS HAVE DONE and what June graduates MIGHT DO.

Such learning may obtain a hearing where a man or woman lacking a college education would not obtain one. But to practical Old Mr. World, it is no more than a good-looking suit of MENTAL clothes.

The graduate, whatever his learning may amount to, must WORK and work HARD, or remain merely a routine graduate, with little to show for his education, save a piece of sheepskin.

The worst possible learning is that kind which makes a young person believe that he ought to succeed WITHOUT HARD WORK.

There is nothing in this age more poisonous than the false education that convinces young gentlemen that some particular task is not good enough for them, or does not offer "opportunity."

Wise indeed is the girl or boy who heeds the advice of President Conant of Harvard University, and follows it.

Make up your mind, he has frequently said, to make Graduation Day the beginning of your life. Consider that your every day is a Graduation Day and see that it finds you knowing just a little bit more than you knew the day before.

This was the philosophy of Franklin, Lincoln, Edison and all the men who achieved real distinction without college degrees.

They kept their eyes and brains open, AND AT WORK. What was true of them IS true of ALL SUCCESS.

Practical Old Mr. World has a place for everybody, for young graduates especially. But the place, which place, is determined not so much by what one has done in school or college as by what one WILL DO in the job he gets.

The will to work, plus thought, plus action. That is the recipe for success.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

A forest ranger in Wyoming breaks into the first pages with the news that he spied a herd of 45 wild buffaloes wandering about on he plains.

This report is news because of the rarity of native buffalo. Yet there are men living who have killed as many as 45 buffaloes in a single day, and who can tell of having looked upon one thousand times 45 of them at one time.

Army officers, out on the Indian wars, reported to Washington in 1870 that they estimated the number of buffaloes on our Western plains at 50,000,000.

Within 20 years from that date, as Dr. W. T. Hornady testifies in his "American Natural History," there remained only 256 head in captivity and 835 running wild. The army estimate may have been exaggerated, but without doubt the bison numbered high in the millions.

Colonel R. I. Dodge in May 1871 drove 25 miles along the Arkansas river through an unbroken herd which Dr. Hornady figured must have contained as many as 500,000 of the creatures. And they were but a part of the southern herd which numbered some 3,000,000.

The slaughter of the buffalo for a long time was considered to be one of the shocking pages of our history. While the years have not condoned the ruthlessness of the destruction, they have nevertheless brought about the realistic viewpoint that in the end it would have become a question of building the West or leaving it to the buffalo.

A TIMELY RESCUE

Fortunately, the extinction of the animal was prevented and, while we haven't more buffaloes than human beings, as we would have had nature been permitted to take its course, we have some 4000 in the United States and 17,000 in Canada.

Ironically enough these twenty-odd thousand are a little too many, making it necessary to thin out the herds from time to time because of the grazing problem. I have listened to plainsmen such as Bat Masterson and Colonel Cody ("Buffalo Bill") tell of the buffalo hunts of the 70's, which were both a sport and a business for themselves and such others as Jim Bridger, Wild Bill Hickcock and Wyatt Earp.

The wholesale slaughter, strangely enough, began neither for sport nor for money-making but as the only means of rounding up the Indians and keeping them on their reservations.

The red man just would not stay put and accept the rations which the government agents handed out grudgingly so long as there was buffalo to be hunted for food and furs. Therefore the army encouraged the killing of the animals.

It never occurred to the first hunters that the hides were of any value. The hides became the real important part of the work when some English tanners bought a lot of 500 at Leavenworth, Kansas, for experimental purposes.

A hunter from Vermont, J. Wright Mooar, with Yankee acumen, decided that if the English leather merchants saw possibilities in buffalo hides, so might the trade back East. He sent skin to his brother in New York and they were sold at $3.50 each. A follow-up order for another 2,000 began the stampede of hunters to the buffalo country.

A CHANGED COUNTRY

The buffalo could not survive the profits of from $50 to $200 a day which were held out to the hunter. Mooar, alone, had two guns in his possession, with which he had killed 10,000.

In 10 years' time the buffalo was scarce and the great plains region was a graveyard littered with the bones of his species. By the same token, it was a poor home indeed which did not boast of at least one buffalo robe.

Cattle and sheep took the place of the bison. Wheat, corn and rye took the place of the buffalo grass. The Indians were subdued, the railroads pushed their way in from all directions and the Wild West soon went the way of the buffalo.

Isn't It So?

There is a "becoming length" in love affairs, just as there is in skirts and bobs; and a woman's intuition should tell her just where to cut them off before they make her look ridiculous.

Not EVERY man believes that he is another Robert Taylor or a replica of Gene Raymond; but if the girl who loves him, insists that he is, far be it from HIM to dispute her taste.

Marry -GO- Round

By Helen Rowland

There is no truth in the old aphorism that it is as easy for a man to love a rich girl as to love a poor one. It is infinitely harder. Because, somehow, instead of brightening up a woman's charms, a background of gold seems merely to dim them to the point of invisibility. Her fortune so dazzles a man that, no matter how beautiful and glamorous she is, he scarcely sees her.

Of course, there HAVE been poor-but-honest young men who have fallen desperately and sincerely in love with million-dollar-heiresses and married them for love—just as there have been snowstorms in May and roses in December.

But, by and large, a poor girl's chances are ten to the rich girl's one of getting a faithful, devoted Prince Charming.

When a man marries a girl who hasn't even a big job and a fat salary check to sustain her, it MUST be for love. Because he is practically signing up to keep his nose to the grindstone for the rest of his life, and his only reward is—the girl!

Almost any girl looks so much more attractive, when she is fussing around a garden, in cheap slacks and a sun-hat, than she does when she is on "dress parade" in a night club or at a formal party.

And when his mind is not on Bradstreet's, he has more time to enjoy her wit; and the lovableness and sweetness of her character are not surpassed by the sweetness of her Daddy's "sugar."

There is no blazing background and no glitter of gold to blind him to the sparkle in her eyes or the flash of her smile. She doesn't have to live up to half-a-dozen closets full of clothes —and her jewels don't outshine her dimples.

That is why the girl who was not born with a golden spoon in her mouth usually cops the prize husband, while the poor-little-rich-girl so often goes on changing coronets and crests in the futile quest for romance.

Japan gives the world something new in premiers—a frank, jolly, every-day fellow.

He sounds, however, like a capable man, for only a capable man could announce the following in the world:

"I am really not capable and not worthy to be premier. I am a very dumb man for a job that is too big for my poor qualifications."

The new premier says he can't sleep, he sneaks a smoke now and then against the doctor's orders and that his wife "rules him with an iron hand."

In spite of this meek and humble attitude there may be latent in Premier Konoye a rocking fine dictator, for he recently went to a masquerade ball disguised as Adolf Hitler.

The American Medical Association has developed the technique of "psycho-surgery," so it claims, to the point where it can by inserting a tiny bore at the temple into the brain "cure out" those parts of the brain which cause anxiety, apprehension, obsessions and panics.

By experiments, mainly on monkeys, "psycho-surgery" even claims it can dampen over-heated imaginations.

To cure the mentally ill is a highly desirable aim, but to "cure out" the cells that contain our imaginations, and even our centers of worry and queer quirks, is not so good.

What a loss the world would have suffered if "psycho-surgery" had "cored out" the "obsessions," the "unbalanced" imaginations and the brain-tensions of Beethoven, Shakespeare, Shelley, Galileo, Rembrandt, Thoreau, Goya, Dumas, Tolstoy, Balzac—and, in fact, all the geniuses you can name!

Those pessimists who tell us that the world is not getting better should compare, as an instance, the times of Henry the Eighth, some four hundred years ago, with the world of today.

Henry wanted a certain bill passed by the Commons. The Commons didn't want to pass the bill. Then Henry issued his famous admonition, as follows:

"I hear that my bill will not pass, but I will have it passed or will have some of your heads."

Today, when an executive order goes forth to Congress urging the passage of an administration measure and Congress balks, the milder threat is used of withholding WPA grants from the states or districts that the stubborn Congressman represent.

"Building a fire" under a stubborn legislator instead of "having his head" is a distinct advance in political humanism.

"Provence, that land of song and romance in the southeast corner of France, is telling war-mad Europe to go hang.

Her 700-year-old courts of love will be held in her "sacred groves" this summer. Her singers will warble and her poets will chant as Provence's old troubadors did in the days when the public singer was more sincerely honored than the king.

In those happier and simpler days the court of love settled such a question as the following:

"A lady listened to one admirer, squeezed the hand of another and touched with her toe the foot of a third. Now, which of the three was the favored suitor?"

But that was then. Today the courts that are convening in Provence will only celebrate the old custom and chant the glories of the wines and the poets of Provence in a language which no one but the Provencals will understand, for, although French, the language of Provence can hardly be understood by a Parisian.

This is part of the program of the popular front, which believes that rips degrade those who receive them.

Such laws are a sheer waste of time and paper, for no law can prevent one person from giving money to another.

We have had such measures introduced into our own State Legislatures. They are always a sign that the session is coming to an end and that the brains of our solons are becoming vacuous and weary.

"IT IS PAINTED BEAUTY, UNREAL, UNNATURAL. ALMOST SEEMS AS IF IT WERE NOT THERE."

This radiant description from the South Pacific of the great "streamer" from the three-minute eclipse of the sun recalls that while man and nations devise means to annihilate one another nature goes on majestically and sublimely spinning her webs of beauty with no more regard for men than men have for sun-midges.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Slum squalor has an eerie tug for me. In every great city I want to take a squint at the seamy side before seeing the hectored politics of Parliament. I have spent far more time in London's Soho and around the India Dock Road than in Piccadilly and Mayfair, and one of the most interesting streets to me is the alley-like aperture, rue de Lappe, filled with bals musettes, Apaches, grisettes and dark drinking dens.

People of the slums espouse a calm and forbearance rarely achieved by a more finely spun civilization. They have mastered that most difficult of living arts—the art of knowing how to take it.

The most depraved district I ever visited was the Red Light of Havre. Expert delvers in sociological slums say that only the badlands of Singapore surpass it for blatancy of wickedness. It was Saturday night and the throttle was wide open. Gendarmes patrolled three abreast and there was a waiting ambulance every two blocks. But nothing seemed to happen.

I've often wondered if Havre isn't putting on an act for visiting firemen. What gave it a comedy touch, too, was the guide's card, which read: Harold Love. Sacre.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, June 12—This is the day I usually just sit at the typewriter—and let myself go. A thought pops up and I swing at it. Hoping to whang one into the bleachers—but usually it's a pop fly to infield. It has been a long time since such a crack reporter and interviewer as Alva Johnston has come along.

He is a young fellow and got his newspaper groundwork in Sacramento. He describes a subject perfectly by reporting the anecdotes of his friends—the Sam Goldwyn pastel, for instance. The good interviewer should never pull out a pad and pencil.

Such questioners as Frank Ward O'Malley, Ed Hill, Richard Harding Davis and Irvin Cobb never did. If they should the interviewed immediately would become self conscious and inarticulate. Herbert Swope was an ace interviewer in his reportorial days. He had a way of prodding big shots into a fury.

And before they knew it they were spouting things they often regretted. I once tried that method on a visiting potentate. He strode with great slashing strides toward me, grew apoplectic red and shook his fist. He said much, but I was so scared I forgot what it was when I got to the office.

He came out of one of the great brownstone mansions on Fifth avenue the other late afternoon, a slight gentleman with a goatee, plainly dressed and walked with his nurse to a highboy limousine of ancient vintage—A New York stamp of family heritage. He was General Cornelius Vanderbilt, last of the avenue's residential aristocrats.

All the rest of the famous names—save Helen Gould, who clings to her townhouse a few blocks southward—have vanished. The famous Vanderbilt chateau at 58th street made way for a big dress-making establishment. The Collis P. Huntington mansion is gone. And the Mr. Millionaire's Row on an upper reach of the avenue is now almost solidly lined with apartment houses.

Park avenue has a number of magnificent private residences but they are gradually being absorbed and turned into hotel apartment living. Many reasons are advanced for abandonment of home for the modern apartment.

But real estate men say there are only two—taxes, and the servant problem!

Alexander Woollcott has for many years been to a fellow I know the personification of the jingle "I do not like you, Dr. Fell; the reason why I cannot tell." The broadcaster has never met the fellow. Yet he so often irritates my friend. Even in the double lettering of his name.

When Woollcott endorses a book my friend vows immediately not to read it, and when his wife, who enjoys Woollcott's radio talks, tunes in, he leaves the room. He is conscious Woollcott is one of our versatile literateurs. He was brilliant as a dramatic critic and has turned out some of the better essays of our time. His radio following is large, constant.

My friend thinks most of us have an Alexander Woollcott in our lives. It is the human mind indulging an irresistible quirk, and cannot be explained. Just one of those things.

In a chop suey cellar in Chinatown the other night I was telling Will Rogers in her "sacred groves" this summer. Her singers will warble and her poets will chant as Provence's old troubadors did in the days when the public singer was more sincerely honored than the king.
